Turkey rejects 9-party talks on Cyprus

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey on Sunday rejected as "not serious" a proposal for nine-party talks aimed at solving the Cyprus dispute, saying it would insist on its own terms for a settlement. Foreign Ministry Spokesman Murat Sungar was responding to an idea launched Saturday by the policy-making Greek Cypriot National Council after a meeting attended by visiting Greek Premier Constantine Mitsotakis. The council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to council called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to Council called on U.N. Secretary-General Called on U.N. Secretary-General Lavier Perez de Cuellar to Council called on U.N. Secretary-General Called Cyprus conference in which the five permanent members of the Security Council—the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France and China—would participate. Earlier Turkish President Turgue Coal called for negotiations between "high-level representatives" of Greece, Turkey, Cyprus and the breakaway Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus. Sungar charged that the Greek Cypriot proposals overlooked the need for a settlement based on the equality of Turkish and Greek Cypriots, reinforced the Greek Cypriot government's claim to represent all Cyprus and sought to derail Turkey's call for four-party talks.

Jordan Times

An independent Arab political daily published by the Jordan Press Foundation جوردان تايمز يومية سياسية تصدر بالانجليزية عن المؤسسة الصحابة الاربنية «الراي»

KLM ROYAL DUTCH AIRLINES IN COOPERATION WITH CYPRUS AIRWAYS

announces the operation of two weekly flights on Wednesday and Friday between Amman and Amsterdam effective June 26th, 1991 Same day connections to major European, North American and Latin American destinations. For more information call your travel agent or KLM at 622175 / 622176 / 655267 / 655268

The Reliable Airline

Price: Jordan 100 fils; Saudi Arabia 1.50 riyals; UAE 1.50 dirhams

Volume 16 Number 4722

'iolin 100

rare State more the London
auctioner
auctioner
auctioner
auctioner
anonyme roam roage iva selling t
of Hane
of Hane
of bene of to ivaria, ivar

those 'I those 'I those 'I those 'I was ke while he while he coas of it is to can be an audere an audere obnavier on exchange the May 2 spokesme to coess in the coess in the k over 16

11 Show 2

Steve Ale

lot ic: Mathe

n ozkánie a plane is

VOLUME

a woman

TO DE LEGIC

:W5. 1984)

here we ретарына

nen

bies

Japanes

record in the second

nd Wells

The diff

World Wa

per woss

id a popular

rate. with e number

ould bears

above sos

Health

The bas

hild hears

resman set nent lesies babies d es. don an incresse is no basical in the mine in 1989 spans than least the career and ca

84

, pigs

first Charge

AMMAN MONDAY, JUNE 10, 1991, THI AL QU'DEH 27, 1411

National Congress endorses National Charter

King: Charter opens door for pluralism; guards people against one-party despotism

By Nermeen Murad Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN — His Majesty King Hussein inaugurated multi-party politics in the Kingdom Sunday but warned that no single party can claim to posess the truth and that pluralism is the only guaran-tee against all forms of dictatorship "particularly despotism by the one-party."

The King also warned against the misinterpretation of democracy: "Democracy must not be mistaken for irresponsible freedom," he said. "It is not a license for libel and defamation. It is not a license to cross the demarcation lines seperating authorities. It is not a silk cloak under which to conceal poisoned daggers. It is not an invitation for each of the authorities to set traps for the other at the expense of the public good, instead of cooperating to promote it. It is not an umbrella for terrorising the minds of others. It is not the means for the despotism of a majority against a minority. That would lead to anarchy which would kill democracy and bring about the ruination of the land and the people."

In two speeches at the Jorda-nian National Congress conference, convened to endorse the National Charter, the King laid out the ground rules for the launching of democratic reform. He stressed the need to utilise the spirit of democracy to continue the dialogue and focus attention on the challenges facing the country, especially those of poverty

The King said that the two most pressing and painful problems facing the Kingdom now are poverty and unemployment which he said were exacerbated by the third wave of mass immigrants in less than forty years.

He was referring to the influx of over 300,000 Jordanians from the Gulf states including Kuwait

His Majesty King Hussein addresses the Jordanian National Congress convened Sunday at the Palace of Culture to endorse the National Charter. Seated behind the King are the 60-member commission that drafted the Charter (photo by Yousef Al 'Alian)

2,000 delegates bless National Charter

By a Jordan Times Staff Writer

AMMAN - Jordan Sunday entered a new political and social era with the endorsement of the National Charter by more than 2,000 prominent personalities representing Jordanians of all walks of life. The charter, presented to the people at a ceremony held at the Palace of Cul-

Majesty King Hussein, aims to develop popular participation and the exercise of political pluralism in the Kingdom, according to Mr. Ahmad Obeidat, the chairman of the 60-member Royal Commission for drafting the charter.

The birth of the charter was proclaimed with unanimous vote

(Continued on page 5)

ture, and addressed by His Obeidat's full speech on page 5)

Badran congratulates King

congratulated His Majesty King Hussein on the endorsement of the National Charter. In his cable, Mr. Badran said the unanimous endorsement of the charter demonstrated the unity of the Jordanian people and their rally

This unanimous popular bles-sing of the National Charter is a He added that the King's dire country, and an irrevocable free selection, will be enhanced,"

Minister Mudar Badran Sunday of the charter coincided with Jordan's celebration of its national

These country-wide celebrations stress Jordan's allegiance to the message and principles of the Great Arab Revolt and the Kingdom's resolve and determination behind the "inspired Hashemite to safeguard its independence, achievements and its wise Hashe-

He added that the King's direcgenuine starting point for a new tives to the national congress on phase where the democratic the charter were a source of approach, which you charted as a inspiration, guiding the steps of wide road for the people and the the Jordanian march, and laying the foundations of democracy, freedom, justice and domination

Western envoys end Lebanon isolation

BEIRUT (R) - Western envoys arrived in Beirut Sunday for talks on hostages and reconstruction, ending the isolation of the civil war years when Europeans walked the city's streets at their

"It is a great opportunity to emphasise Britain's support of the Lebanese government's reasserting control of the integrity of this country," British Foreign Office Minister Douglas Hogg said at the airport.

Hogg told reporters he also wanted to express London's strong desire for an early release of all the 12 western hostages missing in Lebanon, in particular three Britons.

"I don't want to arouse any false expectation of an early release but I shall be doing all that I can to assist," he said.

Diplomatic sources said the British embassy was trying to arrange for Hogg to meet Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadiallah. the spiritual leader of the pro-Iranian Hizbollah (Party of God) which is believed to be an umbreila for the kidnap groups.

Hussein Musawi, Hizbollah secretary-general, said Saturday the western hostages in Lebanon would not be released until Israel freed Palestinian and Lebanese

Former Italian Prime Minister Bettino Craxi, an adviser to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cueilar, landed 90 minutes after Hogg but made no statement to reporters at the airport. Craxi is the highest-ranking

U.N. representative to come since the government declared an end to 16 years of civil war last December and started spreading its authority over Lebanon. Diplomatic sources said Craxi would inspect war destruction during his two-day visit and discuss how the international community could help Lebanon rebuild its infrastructure.

mates war damage at between $15 and $25 billion. It wants up to $2 billion in long-term loans as a start to finance reconstruction.

Minister Marwan Hamadi.

(AP) — Dozens of angry Jewish settlers assaulted Palestinian leader Faisal Husseini Sunday outside a Jerusalem court where a hearing was held for a fellow

In the occupied Gaza Strip, the body of an Arab was found stabbed to death in Rafah after being kidnapped by Palestinian activists, Arab reporters said.

The killing came as Palestimians observed a general strike to mark the start of the 43rd month of their uprising against Israeli occupation of Arab territories. Shops remained closed and public transportation came to a halt. But despite the strike, some 17,000 Arab labourers from the Gaza Strip went to their jobs in Israel, army radio said.

Outside the Jerusalem court, some 30 settlers, including members of the anti-Arab Kach Party, assaulted the 50-year-old Hus-

Sunday for the first time since the emirate was freed from Iraqi

His talks with the emir during a four-hour stay were believed to have centred on slow progress towards a Gulf defence force to King Fahd went straight from the airport to the palace of Sheikh Jaber Al Ahmad Al

Sabah for their first direct talks since they mapped out their vision of the region during the emir's Gulf crisis exile in the

The Saudi Press Agency said

the two rulers conversed by themselves, without the usual delegations on hand. There was no official comment on the talks

It was thought to be the king's first bilateral visit to Kuwait although he has visited the country before to attend meetings of the Organisation of the Islamic

"Kuwaitis and Saudis shed their blood side by side in the battle of honour for the liberation of Kuwait," Kuwait's Crown

Prince Sheikh Saad Al Abdallah

Saudi Arabia called in U.S.

troops after Iraqi forces conquered Kuwait last Aug. 2. It played host to the 680,000-strong coalition force that drove Iraq

from its self-proclaimed 19th province at the end of February.

Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and their

Gulf allies agreed in March to forge a joint defence force with its nucleus drawn from Egypt and Syria, which provided a total of 55,000 troops for Operation De-

The state of the s

Al Sabah said of the visit.

deter future attack.

Saudi resort of Taif.

from either side.

Fahd ends Kuwait visit

KUWAIT (R) — King Fahd of Sert Storm.
Saudi Arabia visited Kuwait on But puttin

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM seini, a pro-PLO activist who has police' station to be returned negotiator with Israel.

me, trying to hit me," Husseini The settlers spotted Husseini as told Israel Radio. "Fortunately I they waited to hear the results of settler held for killing an Arab .managed to get from there with a Jerusalem magistrates court

Photographers said the mob cursed him, spat on him, tried to strike him and threw stones at his

"You'll never get a Palestine," the crowd yelled at Husseini as his two aides ushered him into his car. Husseini was seen wining spittle from his face with handkerchief, Israel Radio said. Police did not intervene, and a police spokeswoman said the incident developed and was over before officers could take action. However, witnesses reported some police stood by as the mob Husseini, who met with U.S. Secretary of State James Baker during his trips here, was at the

But putting the force into effect has been delayed because of regional rivalries - underlined last month by Egypt's surprise

announcement that it was ordering the withdrawal of its troops from Kuwait. Syria also began

Iran, neutral in the war, wants to be part of regional defence

plans to contain what it sees as any future threat from its former foe Iraq.

But the Tehran government

opposes the presence of foreign troops in the region. The United States has said it wants to withdraw its few remaining troops but

The Saudi defence minister.

Prince Sultan, was in Cairo at the weekend for talks on Egypt's

Kuwait has asked the United States and Britain to keep its troops in the area but both countries have scaled down their presence and say their job is done.

troops in Kuwait and a similar number of British soldiers who are due to leave in a couple of

There are about 5,000 U.S.

pulling out its forces.

disagreement.

Gulf security role.

been mentioned as a possible documents confiscated during an arrest earlier in the Palestinian "They started running after uprising.

> hearing for a 27-year-old compatriot who was accused of killing a Palestinian shepherd in a dispute over sheep grazing at a Jewish settlement. The court ordered the Israeli, > identified by Israel Radio as Baruch Yalin, jailed for 12 days while an investigation into the slaying was carried out. The Israeli was arrested Friday > after he shot several of the 55year-old Palestinian's sheep, then opened fire on the shepherd after he was attacked by other Arabs. In the Rafah slaying, Arab reporters identified the victim as Immad Shehadeh Rakhawi, 25, and said he was a suspected drug dealer. A group calling itself the 'Black Panthers' took responsibility for the killing. There has been a sharp rise in the number of Palestinians killed by their fellow Arabs in recent months, most as suspected collaborators, drug dealers or prosti-

At least 400 Arabs have been killed by their brethern during the uprising. Some 830 Palestinians have been slain by Israeli soldiers and civilians.

Faisal Husseini

The Palestinian leadership has repeatedly called for an end to the killings of alleged collaborators. The Arab press published editorials over the weekend calling for a self-examination of the way the violence of the uprising has turned upon itself.

Palestinians have complained about activists using the uprising as a cover for thefts and killings. The Israeli daily Yedioth Aharonoth ran a front page photo of a public flogging over the weekend of an alleged thief in Nablus, the West Bank's largest city.

Kuwait sets up panel to review court verdicts

KUWAIT (R) - The Kuwaiti government, apparently bowing to international pressure over the conduct of Iraqi "collaboration" trials, has set up a panel to review all verdicts issued by a martial law will maintain a regional presence The move was announced in the state-controlled newspaper Relations between revolution-Al Fajr Al Jadid (New Dawn) on ary Iran and conservative Saudi Sunday, a day after the court Arabia have warmed considerpassed its first death sentence abły following a landmark visit since trials began three weeks ago this month by the Saudi foreign of people charged with helping Iraqi occupation forces.

The United States, which led Cairo diplomats said last week an international coalition that enthat Egypt was upset about the ded Iraq's seven-month hold on absence of an invitation from Kuwait, has been, the most vocal Kuwait to maintain its forces of the Western allies in expressthere. Western diplomats said ing concern about the trials. differences over payment for the Mankhi Al Shammari, a stateforce could be one reason for the less Arab resident of Kuwait, was sentenced to hang for joining Irag's popular army, a reserve force deployed in the emirate by Baghdad.

He has no right of appeal under martial law but formation of the committee suggested his sentence would be reviewed.

New Dawn quoted Justice Minister Ghazi Sammar as saying the panel was set up by the martial law administrator, Sheikh Saad Al Abdulla Al Sabah, who is crown prince and prime minis-

Until now, Sheikh Saad alone had the power to reduce or commute sentences handed down by courts composed of two military officers and three judges.

"The martial law governor has ordered the formation of an office of three legal counsels to study verdicts issued by the martial law courts for approval to see if these courts have applied the law correctly." Sammar was quoted as saying.

Charges filed during martial law would revert to civil or state security offences when the exceptional powers expired at the end of this month, the justice minister

Sheikh Saad denounced torture and harassment of suspected collaborators in May, saying such abuses tarnished Kuwait's human rights image among the U.S.-led coalition countries that drove Iraq out of the emirate in a six-week war.

U.S. Ambassador Edward Gnehm told Kuwaitis on Saturday that the world was watching their handling of human rights. "Kuwaitis must champion justice and fairness for all people in Kuwait in the same way the entire world stood for those principles for Kuwaitis," he told the chamber of commerce.

Shamir wants say on Palestinian delegation

Israel reveals Bush compromise proposals

TEL AVIV (Agencies) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Sunday that U.S. President George Bush asked Israel to freeze Jewish settlement in occupied areas in return for U.S. agreement to Israeli demands on proposed Middle East peace

Shamir said Israel wanted Palestinians represented within a Jordanian delegation to the talks, chosen by Jordan with an Israeli Shamir gave no indication that he accepted the proposals.

"There is a statement in his (Bush's) telegram which says if we could offer treezing settlements perhaps there would not be a need for the things that you are not satisfied with." Shamir told "I don't want to say exactly how the Palestinian part of the Jordanian delegation will be formed. It is clear that we are counting on Jordan to form the delegation but we must agree to the Palestinian component," he added.

The proposals were contained in a personal message from Bush to Shamir aimed at bridging differences between Israel and Arabs on a U.S. proposed peace conference. According to Shamir's remarks

Bush indicated that in return for a halt settlement in captured Arab lands the U.S. could accept Israel's opposition to any role for the United Nations and to the reconvening of the conference after country-to-country talks be-tween Israel and Arab states.

The United States has said Israel's speedy expansion of Jewish settlements in occupied territory is one of the biggest obstacles to convening peace talks.

Syria, which the United States hopes to bring into the conference, has insisted on a significant role for the U.N. and for a periodic reconvening of the full . conference. Israel wants the initial meeting to break up into bilateral talks and not reconvene. Earlier both state-run Israel

Radio and army radio said Shamir's letter that last week turned down President Bush's appeal for Israel to drop demands on procedural matters aslo said the Jewish state would insist on strict terms for Palestinian participa-

Israel would not attend a Middle East peace conference until there was agreement on who would represent the Palestinians.

they said. Shamir cited disagreement osed during the last U.S. peace effort. The hardline Israeli leader has refused to accept any Palestinians from Arab East Jerusalem, which over the composition of the Palestinian delegation in refusing

a year ago to enter talks prop-

Israel says is now part of Israel, or those living abroad. He has also questioned a role for those associated with the Palestine Liberation Organisa tion, which includes all well-known nationalists but is regarded by Israel as bent on destroying the Jewish state. The nearly two million Palestinians in the occupied territories. including East Jerusalem, staged general strike Sunday to mark three-and-a-half years of revolt against Israeli control. Army radio said Bush had believed there was general agreement on Palestinian representation from the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, but Shamir had rejected that as a warning against Washington quickly calling a peace conference. Israel confirmed Friday tont Shamir's letter rejected U.S. appeals for a minor United Nations role in the proposed talks and for the conference to reconvene after six months of state-tostate talks to hear a progress Shamir's position was widely Kuwait.

attacked by Israeli newspapers Sunday but government officials played down the significance of his response to Bush.

"We haven't closed the door," Foreign Minister David Levy said after a cabinet meeting. "We are continuing clarifications with the United States and we will continue this.' "I hope that the dialogue with our friend will indicate to us progress also on the side of the Arab states," he told reporters.

Egypt warns Israel

In Cairo, Foreign Minister Amr Moussa said Sunday that Egypt is making contacts to push forward the Middle East peace process and remove obstacles olding up negotiations.

Moussa indirectly warned Israel of the grave responsibility of putting up obstacles to block the peace process.

'I hope all parties start moving toward peace because the responsibility of stalling peace is grave and the responsibility of failing proposed peace plans is very big," Moussa told reporters.

That is why Egypt is making contacts to discuss the obstacles. Egypt is making contacts will all the parties including the Palestinians," Moussa said.

Egypt and the PLO have been strained since they took opposite sides on Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of

On the Occasion of the Anniversary of The Great Arab Revolt and Army Day

ARAB BANK

has the honour to convey to his majesty king hussein and the Jordanian People felicitations and best wishes.

T & Dames
T & Da The Lebanese government esti-

With Lebanon's foreign minister abroad, Hogg was welcomed on arrival by Economy and Trade

(Continued on page 3)

MIDDLE EAST NEWS IN BRIEF

Six Israeli MPs to visit Egypt

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM (R) - Six Labour Party members of Israel's parliament will go to Egypt on Wednesday to discuss U.S. efforts to convene Middle East peace talks. Caucus leader Haim Ramon said he and five others plan to meet foreign ministry officials and possibly Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak. "We will hear their positions, what they have done on the peace process, and tell them ours," Ramon told Reuters. The Likud Party of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said the Labour MPs' trip would sabotage its current peace efforts.

Israel television shows Syrian Jews praying

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM (R) - Israel television showed rare videotape on Saturday of Syrian Jews praying in a Damascus synagogue. It said about 3,000 Jews remained in Syria, an arch foe of Israel, and the Syrian government recently allowed representatives of international organisations to visit them. The videotape was shot by a reporter for the U.S. News and World Report. It showed men wearing the skullcaps of religious Jews praying in an ornate synagogue and a Jewish school where children studied religious texts in Hebrew. At least seven Syrian Jews were serving jail sentences including two arrested recently with their families while trying to escape the country, the television said.

Poli 89 per cent say U.S. should be proud of Desert Storm

NEW YORK (R) - Amid parades for returning U.S. troops, a Time/CNN poll released on Saturday showed that a huge majority of Americans feel the United States should be proud of what was accomplished during the Gulf war. The telephone survey of 1,000 adults conducted on June 4-5 for the news magazine and Cable News Network television found that 89 per cent of those polled felt the U.S. should be proud of what was accomplished. With Iraqi Leader Saddam Hussein still in power, the Kuwaiti monarchy apparently making no progress towards democratisation and efforts to force Arab-Israeli peace meeting with frustration, victory in the Gulf may not have achieved all that Americans had hoped for, the survey said. Still, the magazine said, 76 per cent of those questioned believe the war was worth fighting. The survey also showed that 68 per cent of those polled say Americans should be proud of what the United States has accomplished in the Middle East since the fighting ended. The poll, conducted by the Yankelovich Clancy Shulman organisation, had a margin of error of three per cent.

GCC information ministers take measures against Iraq

NICOSIA (R) - Gulf Arab states decided on Saturday to suspend Iraq's membership in all Gulf media institutions, Kuwait News Agency reported. It said information ministers of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council met in Kuwait to study post-Gulf war information strategy. KUNA, received in Cyprus, said a GCC information centre in Baghdad would be closed.

North African, European ministers to meet in Libya today

BENGHAZI, Libya (R) — Libya confirmed on Sunday that foreign ministers of the Maghreb states would hold a meeting with four EC foreign ministers in Tripoli on Monday. The Libyan News Agency JANA said the ministers would discuss "political and economic issues of common interest" and work on boosting cooperation between countries in the region. The agency quoted a foreign ministry spokesman as confirming the scheduled meeting with the foreign ministers of France, Italy, Spain, Portugal. The Maltese foreign minister would also take part in the talks. The five Maghreb states - Libya, Mauritania, Tunisia, Morocco and Algeria — are concerned about the impact on their economies of the 1992 European Community plan for a single European market. The North African countries are heavily dependent on trade with the EC. There had been doubts the foreign ministers' meeting would take place after political upheaval in Algeria forced the cancellation of a weekend summit of Maghreb leaders in Benghazi. JANA quoted the foreign ministry source as saying four Maghreb foreign ministers would attend the meeting.

Bush names staff personnel director to VOA post

WASHINGTON (AP) - President George Bush said he was nominating his White House personnel director, Charles Graves Untermeyer, to head the government's Voice of station. Untermeyer, whose exact title would be associate director of the U.S. information agency for broadcasting and director of the Voice of America, would replace Richard W. Carlson. Bush also announced he was appointing Carison as his ambassador to the Indian Ocean island state of Seychelles. Both positions must be confirmed by the Senate. Untermeyer has served as White House personnel director since 1989. Before that he was assistant secretary of the navy for manpower and reserve affairs.

Amman's Super DISCO Nightly except Friday

International operation saves victims of famine

By Dalia Baligh The Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt - An international relief operation has temporarily saved 11 million Sudanese who were potential victims of famine and drought this summer, a Western diplo-

The diplomat, who is based in the Sudanese capital Khartoum, said that better than average rainfall has been reported in western Sudan since May which means the twoyear-old cycle of drought has probably ended and will not create new threats next year.

"The message to send out now is that the international relief operation has saved lives and prevented many deaths already but that there are still problems," the diplomat said. He spoke in a telephone interview from Khartoum on condition he not be further identi-

NICOSIA (R) — Libyan Foreign

Minister Ibrahim Mohamed

Beshari said on Sunday the Libyans and the British should talk to one another "like civilised

He was commenting on Britain's insistence that Libya should renounce terrorism and withdraw its alleged backing for the Irish

Republican Army before there could be any suggestion of renewed links between the two any doubts, why don't we sit at the table of negotiations like all the civilised people," the Libyan News Agency JANA quoted him as saying.

"Why all this frantic campaign that calls for solving problems among nations through dialogue and without any pre-conditions in the framework of... mutual respect," JANA, received in Cyprus, quoted him as saying.

A British Foreing Office

spokesman on Saturday said

there can be no improved relations between Britain and Libya

until we have convincing evidence that the Libyans have renounced their support for international terrorism, including the Diplomatic ties between Tripo-

1984 after a policewoman was killed by a shot fired from the government has cancelled wartime labour laws and renewed pledges to open up the political system to greater freedoms,

The Revolutionary Command

Council on Saturday lifted laws restricting the freedom of government workers imposed during the 1980-88 war with Iran, according to Al-Thawra, the organ of the ruling Arab Baath Socialist Party.

daily Al-Jumhuriya quoted Vice President Taha Yassin Ramadan

as saying that the government would soon revise laws on politicvowed to liberalise Iraq's authoritarian system to grant more political freedoms, a move begun

Kurdish leaders negotiating an autonomous region in northern Iraq say President Saddam has agreed in principle to a multi-party democracy, a free press and an end to the automatic rule of

The council's decision on the labour laws put an end to decrees issued in 1983 and 1984 which with halting steps in 1989.

the Baath Party.

President Saddam Hussein has al parties and press freedom.

Meanwhile, the government newspapers reported Sunday.

"We are a democratic country against Libya?" He asked.

"If the British, or others, have people."

countries.

He said the United States, Britain, European Community countries and other donors had sent in 300,000 metric tonnes of relief aid to affected Sudanese, all but 50,000 which had actually been distributed have already been pledged. The United Nations had warned that up to 11 million Sudanese were threatened by famine and drought and that Sudan faced a shortage of 1.3 billion metric tonnes of relief food needed until the end of the year. They said that tens of thousands of deaths could be to people who needed it. Another 200,000 metric tonnes expected starting May. The famine and drought situation affecting almost the whole country was further complicated by the military government's initial refusal to acknowledge the crisis or to assist with an emergency relief day Libya's connection with terrorism was "a fairly recent one and an overwhelmingly damaging

Britain's Observer newspaper

on Sunday quoted Libva's ambassador to the United Nations as saying his country had broken all links with the IRA, which is

"We have, as civilised people, fighting to oust Britain from always denounced terrorist acts,

the holding of hostages and kid-nappings," the paper quoted

Ambassador Ali Treiki as saying.

court evidence, Libya supplied tonnes of virtually undetectable

Czechoslovak-made Semtex explosives and other arms to the

The Observer said Libyan leader Muammar Qadhafi offered to give Britain details of Libyan arms shipments to Irish Republican guerrillas in an attempt to Conservative member of parliament Teddy Taylor returned to Britain from a 10-day trip to Libya last week carrying messages for the British government from Beshari and other leaders.

terrorism and assertions by Britain to the contrary were "un-

time and night pay for state work-

It also lifted measures which imposed stiff punishment on state workers who abandoned their jobs and banned the resignation of those who had less than 10

The laws affected much of the labour force. A large portion of the economy is under state con-posed to push economic output to the limits when the country faced the threat of invasion by Iran in the mid-1980s. The decrees were continued through the invasion of

Kuwait last year and the subse-

Because many government jobs pay only 150 to 200 dinars a month, many state workers were forced to take second or third jobs to make ends meet, especially as inflation eroded the value of Iraq's currency. A dinar is worth

$3.2 officially, but less than 20

A kilogramme of meat costs about 10-15 dinars and a piece of cents on the black market.

flat bread half a dinar.

quent Gulf war.

The wartime rules were im-

trol in this socialist country.

years in government service.

On Saturday Beshari said

According to British police and northern Ireland.

IRA in the 1980s.

improve relations.

li and London were broken in Libya had nothing to do with Libyan embassy during a de- acceptable and illogical."

labour, political laws

BAGHDAD (AP) — The Iraqi allowed officials to cancel over-

Iraq to normalise

On May 30, Andrew S. Natsios, director of the U.S. Agency for International Development's Foreign Disaster Assistance Office, said that much more food is available in Sudan because large amounts of food were discovered being hoarded by merchants waiting for shortages to push the prices

This availability of the food allows Western donors to pay for it and distribute it to hungry people much quicker than shipping it into the country.

World Food Programme spokesman Paul Mitchell said in Rome that in May, an average of eight people were dying of hunger every day in Sodiri in North Kordofan, 400 kilometres southwest of Khartoum where tens of thousands of people had gathered in

"There is no real data on mortalit rates caused by the famine and drought. There have been some deaths but numbers are no worse than normal," said the diplomat who was unable to confirm Mitchell's mortality figures.

Eastern, western and southern Sudan were believed to be the worst famine stuck areas. The diplomat said that relief food had reached almost all those areas and that relief flights for the south were starting again from Kenya and Uganda.

"The main pockets of concern are okay for now," he said. "It turned out to be a better logistical situation that we expected. But there are still major constraints. The weather, fuel and trucks remain in great shortage. The money supply."

He said 2,500 metric tonnes of food were daily moving out of the country's main Red Sea port, Port Sudan.

The government has continued to create bureaucratic problems for Western relief organisations working in Sudan. Travel permits needed by all foreigners to travel out-side of Khartoum are not easily obtainable, annual re-registration for the organisations is delayed and they are given a very poor exchange rate of 4.5 Sudanese pounds to the dollar instead of the more

The famine in Sudan and across the Horn of Africa has been caused by the failing of summer rains for two consecutive years.

favourable 12.10 pounds to the

The diplomat said it had started raining in western Sudan in May. "Already it has rained there in the past few weeks more than it rained all of last year. Some people have started planting seeds for the next season," the diplomat said.

He said only about 30-40 per cent of the needed seeds were available in the west and that relief organisations were sending in more seeds. However no rain has been reported in the east or south of Sudan. The summer rains are not always welcome. Travellers to Kordofan in western Sudan said the rains have meesed up the dirt roads and that trucks carrying relief food are bogged down in the sand. "We have to wait until early July and get information about rainfall all over the country to see whether the drought is: really over or not," the West-ern diplomat said. "But all things considered, the picture is a bit brighter."

Libya says to Britain: Let's The Arabian Peninsula's only talk 'like civilised people' brewery to stop making beer monstration in the British capital. British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said on Wednes-

By Mariam Isa

ADEN, Yemen - Islamic fundamentalists are gaining ground in newly united Yemen and are forcing the Arabian Peninsula's only brewery to stop making

Ali Noaman, manager of the Seera Beer Factory in Aden, told Reuters that during the Muslim holy month of Ramadan this year the government-owned plant was told to switch to making nonalcoholic beverages as quickly as possible. He said the brewery, protected from angry fundamentalists by a high stone wall and several strands of barbed wire, would continue producing beer until ingredients run out in July. But the order signals the end of an era for the formerly socialist south, which united with its larger and more traditional neighbour one year ago.

In the secular south, influenced by decades of British colonial rule and immigrants from Africa and India, Yemenis drink openly in hotel bars and seedy nightclubs.

Most of the alcohol is brought by boat from Djibouti.

In the tribal north, alcohol is banned in compliance with Islamic rules. But many northerners drink booze smuggled from the south or directly from Djibouti to the northern port of Hodeidah. Importers say former North

Yemen was the biggest consumer of Johnny Walker Black Label in the Arab World. Some of the whisky went to neighbouring Saudi Arabia, where alcohol is also banned. Now, northern fundamentalists are bribing barrenders in Aden to stop serving the forbidden brew. Some take the money and close only to re-open a couple of weeks later.

Officials say there are no plans as yet to ban alcohol imports in Aden, a major world port which fell into neglect after Marxists took power in the wake of independence from Britain in 1967. But the government-owned

Victory supermarket chain will stop selling liquor in July. Many people predict alcohol will eventually be banned altogether.

will stop producing is a goven-ment concession to the Islamic fundamentalists, one importer

"But closing the brewery will not reduce drinking in Yemen, it will increase it," he added.Importers say another reason for the step was that northern alcohol simugglers — many from influential families - were losing customers because it was so much cheaper to visit Aden and drink there. Seera is one-tenth the price of smuggled beer in Sanaa.

Business boomed at the brewery, which makes six million litres a year, after the merger between north and south Yemen.

Wealthier northerners began replacing southern customers, who were hit harder by Yemen's economic recession. Clients would drive up to the brewery's iron gates — still plastered with socialist red stars - to buy crates or truckoads directly.

Noaman said plans to convert the 10-year-old plant to one that could produce non-alcoholic beer, mineral water and juices would be costly. It would also "The main reason the brewery deprive the merged government of more than 265 million rivals ($22 million) of tax revenues a

Unless Noaman can find markets for the non-alcoholic brew in neighbouring Sandi Arabia, he expects to lose money. But there is little choice. During Ramadan, which fell in porarily stopped working to avert Muslim anger. This failed to placate southern believers. Demonstrators marched from Friday prayers to the plant and one managed to climb over its

April this year, the brewery tem-dilapidated wall to try to set it ablaze. The army was called out to prevent major damage. Eckhardt Zitzmann, the plant's German adviser, is philosophical about the change. "You are in a country where alcohol is supposed to be forbidden but the government owns a brewery," he said.

Zitzmann, who managed a brewery in Iran prior to the 1979 Islamic revolution, said the Aden plant would switch to the same malt beverage still being produced by his old factory in

U.S. presses human rights message 100 days later

By Andrew Hill Reuter

100 days after it aid Kuwait of Iraqi troops, Washington is using its status as the Gulf war saviour to urge Kuwaitis to kick the legacy of human rights abuse left over from Iraq's occupation.

With one eye on weekend memorial parades of Gulf veterans in Washington and New York, the U.S. ambassador to Kuwait urged the government to end torture of suspected collabor-

Suspects should be tried in court, he said.

"To do otherwise will give Saddam Hussein a success of evil proportions," Edward Gnehm said in a speech delivered to Kuwait's businessmen but which was clearly aimed at its political leaders.

"He sowed discontent, he fathered brutality and torture. He fostered divisions between brothers. You must not become a victim now of the poison brought to Kuwait."

Gnehm, speaking "very frankly but as a friend," reminded the Kuwaiti leadership of its promise to speed democratic reform and revive a parliament which was dissolved in 1986.

"We welcomed your government's commitment last fall (October) to elections and par-we strongly support the broadest that it cannot greatly affect citizens rights. KUWAIT — Little more than possible participation of people in kuwait's human rights policy or making the decisions that will democratisation proces affect their future and their well being."

The ambassador, who returned to Kuwait 100 days ago was speaking a few hours before a martial law court sentenced a collaborator to death for the first

It came a week after the emir announced the resurrection of a toothless assembly and that new elections would not be held for another 17 months. Washington has been outspoken on both issues since leading the 26-nation coalition that ended Iraq's seven-month occupation of the emirate at the end of February. Knwaiti opposition activists have also condemned human rights abuse and want general elections now.

The tough tone of Gnehm's remarks was as unexpected as the forum — the Kuwaiti Chamber of Commerce — was surprising. It appeared to indicate that the United States will not lose sight of the goals of human rights observance and democracy as Operation Desert storm recedes into memory and public opinion focuses on domestic recession and other foreign issues.

Washington media reports, quoting U.S. officials, said the should quietly adopt a laissezfaire attitude, while monitoring both areas.

Gnehm gave no such impression in his speech. "Clearly those individuals who broke Kuwaiti law and were parties to Iraqi criminal acts should be prosecuted fairly and fully under the law. "But the innocent should not become new victims," he said, referring to allegations that some Palestinians and other non-Kuwaitis had been persecuted by security forces or self-styled militias because of PLO support for Baghdad through the Gulf crisis.

"No matter how emotionally difficult it is, Kuwaitis must now champion justice and fairness for all people in Kuwait the same way as the entire world stood for those principles for kuwaitis," he

Kuwaiti officials said that a wave of revenge killings of Palestinians at the end of the war has now stopped although isolated cases of abduction and torture may continue. They point out that such allegations are made by foreign human rights groups allowed to operate freely in Kuwait and say the current collaboration trials are liamentary life. We do so because state department has concluded proof of their commitment to

But rights activists say governabduction and revenge have failed to eradicate abuse and fear the remaining 200,000 strong Palestinian community has been alienated.

They are concerned about the conduct of the trials, a view echoed by the White House which last mouth voiced concern at the failure of the court to call witnesses and the reliance of the trials on confessions defence lawyers say were made under torture or duress. Lawyers defending 17 defendants — eight Iraqis, seven Jordanians and two bedowns (stateless Arabs) — alleged in summing up on Saturday that all their clients had confessed under

One, Bedoun Mankhi Al Shammari, was sentenced to be hanged for joining Iraq's popular army militia during the occupa-tion. He admitted the charge but said he joined only because of Iraqi threats to his family.

Shammari has no right of appeal. No date for the hanging was set. Before the invasion the emir of Kuwait regularly commuted death sentences - the last carried out was against a Pakistani who murdered a bus driver in 1990.

Other Flights (Terminal 2)

JORDAN TELEVISION Tel: 773111-19

	MME TWO La Belle Ana
	News in Fr
9:15	Weekly Sports Mags News in Hel
19:39	News in Hel
00:01	.,,,
Ma:30	Empty
:L:10	Nancy V News in En
12: 6 0	News in En
12:29	, Meerder in T

CHURCHES

th Church Tel. 624590.

De in Saile Church Tel. 661757 Terramata Church Tel: 622366 Cherreta Tel. 625383, Tel. Armenian Catholic Church Tel. 771331. ian Orthodox Church Tel. 685326 811295.

hurch of Jean Christ of Lat white Tel. 815817, 654932. h of Nazarene Tel. 675691. WEATHER

letin supplied by the Department of Slight drop in temperatures will take bace in the afternoon and winds will be northwesterly moderate to fresh. In Agaba, winds will be northerly moder-

JORDAN TIMES DAILY GUIDE AND CALENDAR

	34 /
gaba eserts	16 /
rdan Valley
-
esterday's high temperature an 32, Aqaba 36. Humidity re	s: A mman 27 per cent. Agaba	24 r

USEFUL TELEPHONE NUMBERS

NIGH! DUIT
AMMAN:
Dr. Mohammad Manaa	7414
Dr. Anwar Al Haj	7710
Dr. Abdul Aziz Taboun	7837
Dr. Yousef Sammour
Fires pharmacy
Perdows pharmacy
Al Asema pharmacy	05/V
Nairoukh pharmacy	6236
Al Salam pharmacy	6367
Vacant akaman	244C

EMERGENCIES

Rescue Police 192, 621111,
Fire Brigade
Blood Bank	775121
Highway Police	843402
Traffic Police
Public Security Department
Hotel Complaints	605800
Price Complaints	661176
Water and Sewerage
Complaints	897467
•

787111 121

636381

RJ Flight Information ........ 08-53200 Queen Alia Intl. Airport..... 08-53200 HOSPITALS

Water Authority . Jordan Electricity . Electric Power

AMMAN:
Hussein Medical Centre	813813/3
Khalidi Maternity, J. Amn	644281
Akilch Maternity, J. Amn
Jabal Amman Maternity
Malhas, J. Amman
Palestine, Shmeisani
Shmeisani Hospital	90913

University Hospital ... Al-Mussher Hospital The Islamic, Abdali Al-Ahli, Abdali . Amal Hospital .. . 674155 ZARQA: Zarqa Govt. Ho Zarna National

Greek Catholic Hospital Ibn Al Nafoes Hospital... FOR THE TRAVELLER

(02)275555

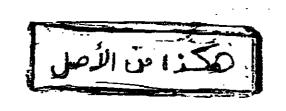

(Terminal 1)

QUEEN ALIA INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT This information is supplied by Royal lordanian (RI) information depart-ment at the Queen Alia International Airport Tel. (08)53200-5, where it should always be verified. MARKET PRICES ARRIVALS Royal Jordanian (RJ) Flig (Terminal 1) Dubai, Abu Dhabi Riyadb DEPARTURES Royal Jordanian (RJ) Filg

_	Upper/lower price in fils per kg.
phts .	Apple
	Banana
	Banana (Mukammar) 450 / 400
(RJ)	Beans
(RJ)	Cabbage 120 / 80
(RJ)	Carrot
(RJ)	Cardifforer 200 / 150
(RJ)	Cacumbers (large) 120 / 80
(RJ)	Cacambers (small)
	Eggplest
2)	Garlic 509 / 400 .
	Leenon
(GF)	Lettuce (per one)
(MS)	Marrow (large) 120 / 20
	Marrow (senali)
	Onion (dry) 200 / 150
	Orange
ahte	Pepper (hot) 280 / 220
31100	Pepper (sweet) 300 / 250
	Potato
æ.	Radish 150 / 100
	Sage 450 / 350
ດຂາ	Sweet melon 280 / 240
(RI)	Tomatoes 230 / 180
(· ·· )	Watermelon 270 / 220

.- **.- .

AQABA (Petra) — Aqaba district Governor Quitan Al Majali Sunday met in Wadi Araba with a ioint team from Oueen Alia Jordan Social Welfare Fund (QAF) and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF).

tycation year of the said of t

O SOUL DE SOUL

venues ;

C DICE

rabia, le Bui dece

ich (et a

ACTA (CF

ig to aven

eq ro ha hed from plant 📷

) Over is

io sa i called or the plant

:Osophica

be torbu

DL OWIS 2

2Daged &

o dhe 1979

the same

eing pre-nimed I

SBY BUTCH

ist inter,

enge late

000 and

ry has bee

d about 🕏

yk, 2 1855

hite Hoss

ced conces

ळळा छ तो jance of 🕏

IDS defend

made wit

g 17 data

acis, see

. alleged s irday that is fessed me

Mankhi A

tenced to k

raq's popular the occupe to charge is because if family no right if the based invasion is guiarly one — the is guiarly one — the is substituted in the based in the based in the based in the based in the oce — the is substituted in the based in the oce — the is substituted in the occupant in the occupa

minal 2

The team is currently on a field visit in south Jordan to inspect the health and nutrition situation of children in the region, in preparation for launching a programme, aimed at addressing mal-

The programmae provides for offering special meals to children to protect them from early childhood diseases, resulting from

Mr. Majali and the team members reviewed the health and educational situation in Wadi Araba and briefed them on the living conditions of people in the

Meanwhile, the voluntary committee of Princess Basma Social Development Centre, in cooperation with the Jordan Medical and pharmacists associations organised a free medical day for Wadi Araba inhabitants. Patients calling at Princess Basma Centre received free treatment and drugs, donated by Aqaba district pharmacies and OAF.

Dughmi returns after attending ILO meeting

AMMAN (Petra) — Labour Minister Abdul Karim Al Dughmi returned home Sunday after taking part in the 78th session of the International Labour Organisation's conference, held in

In an arrival statement, Mr. Dughmi, who headed the Jordanian delegation to the meetings said the Jordanian delegation had stressed the need for denouncing the Israeli oppressive measures against Palestinians and the discrimination policy Israel follows in the occupied Arab territories.

He added that the Jordanian delegation had called for setting up a special fund to pay comfrom Kuwait and other Gulf countries, and for increasing the allocations of the Regional Office meeting's agenda.

He also said that he had met, on the sidelines of the session, with Arab labour ministers attending the meetings and discussed with them the Israeli practices in the occupied Arab terridan's standing in the international community in the aftermath of the Gulf war and highlighted the need for the Kingdom to interact positively with the new world

the world, no matter how big or powerful, that can live in isolation from the enfluence of other

as members of the international community, have responsibilities

over and above our national and pan Arab duties," he pointed only natural for a nation to have its own priorities according to its resources, size, demography and responsibilities. Just as others do not allow us to define their priorities for them we allow none to define ours," the King said.

The ratification of the National Charter Sunday signals the end of the national reconciliation process that began a year ago between the different groups of political thinking in the country and ushers in a new era institutionalising democracy and trans-

The charter, as a document, is the culmination of nine months of delibrations among 60 Jordanian

political activists, appointed by the King, and entrusted to translate the different views of the public into general guidelines that would govern the different elements of political, economic and politicians and the leadership on the basic rules which would ensure a harmonious coexistence speeches to the national congress

were aimed at reiterating the National Charter's spirit which denies any political party total control of what the truth represents and protects the freedom of the minorities and individuals in said that his assemenent of the Kingdom's democratic experiment since the 1989 national elections is that it was "in general, satisfactory," and called for cor-recting "deviations until the experiment settles to its natural path and becomes and integral

In his second speech, the King

Analysts say that the King's

It is also a contract between the lating it into laws.

social life in Jordan.

between the two sides.

the Kingdom.

part of our lives."

HOME NEWS IN BRIEF

AMMAN (J.T.) - Her Royal Highness Princess Sarvath Sunday

attended a ceremony held at the Plaza Hotel for the graduation of 24 students from the American Community School in Amman.

Among those present at the ceremony were the students' parents,

AMMAN (Petra) — On the anniversary of the Great Arab

Revolt, which falls on June 10, the Public Security Department

(PSD) will distribute a gift of ID 50 to each of the martyrs' families. The PSD, in a statement Saturday, invited the children the U.S. ambassador and his wife, and other invited guests.

Princess Sarvath attends graduation

Martyrs' familles rewarded

of the martyrs to receive the gifts.

"We must remember that it is

"We should remember that we.

states," the King said.

There is not a single state in

King: Charter opens door for pluralism ated in the second speech. The King also pointed to Jor-

(Continued from Page 1)

and Iraq during the Gulf crisis. "The imbalance in the pyramid of the working force and type of employment needed has also become more acute as a result of outdated social and cultural inhibitions which are no longer compatible with the requirements of our time," the King pointed

"We shall not be saved, nor shall we gain anything by closing our eyes to what is happening around us, and how it affects us. We live in an age of science and technology, and in a world of mutual interests. We live in the age of the quest for a better life, where human dignity and human rights are respected," he said. But the strongest theme in the King's speeches was the rejection of single party rule or the imposition of the will of the majority over the minority. "There is not a single party that can claim to posess truth. If such a party existed, it would be the enemy of the nation, of dialogue and of truth combined," the King said in the speech he delivered at the opening of the congress con-

Referring to the prerequisites for real democracy, the King told the 2,000 delegates to the congress that "truth, in a democratic state, is not monopolised by an individual nor by a group. Truth, ultimately, is the product of a national dialogue leading to con-

The framework of all this is freedom, which is the basis of dialogue, the basis of truth. and the basis of democracy," he said. In the second speech, the King said that the next natural step will be to complete the establishment of political pluralism in two stages: Amend the law on the formation of political parties and to permit the formation of political parties in accordance with the anticipated legislation.

"Pluralism is the only guaran-tee against all forms of dictatorship and despotism, particularly despotism by the one-party," the King said in his first speech.

We must work dilligently to benefit from our experience and that of others. We must remember that despotism, isolationism, and social disharmony will only bring about more backwardness. more irrationality, and more dilapidation," King Hussein reiterfor Arab states.

Mr. Dughmi said that the Arab delegations taking part in the Geneva meetings had held several meetings to coordinate their stands vis-a-vis all issues on the

Princess Basma opens kindergartens in Madaba

labal Bani Hamideh. During a tour in the two villages as well as Ballout village, Princess Basma called for inten-

MADABA (Petra) - Her Royal governmental organisations' Highness Princess Basma Sunday efforts to promote children and opened two kindergartens in women welfare, noting in this Idaidah and Makawer villages, in regard the importance of public Madaba district, and toured the participation in the development various sections of the kindergar- process. She also stressed the need for utilising all available The kindergartens were set up resources in projects benefitting by Al Zahra'a Welfare Society of women and children.

Her Royal Highress Princess Basma Sunday tours a kindergarten opened by Al Zahra'a Welfare Society

Al Zahra'a Society President Hana Kurdi briefed Princess Basma on the purposes of establishing the kindergartens, and sifying governmental and non- stressed the importance of coordinating governmental and nongovernmental efforts to set up such projects.

She pointed our that the society planned to set up more kindergartens in other villages of Mada-

The society, which was established in 1987, focusses on maternal and child programmes as well as vocational training for women.

Princess Basma was accompanied on her visit by a number of officials in Madaba district.

Visiting writer and businessman eager to see Japanese investing in Jordan

Anti-Zionist Japanese denied entry into W. Bank

was attacked by the New York

By Maha Addasi Special to the Jordan Times

AMMAN - A Japanese writer who is determined to give the people of Japan a clearer view of the political life in the West Bank was refused entry even though he had visited the West Bank 30 times before. Dr. Masami Uno said he was blacklisted and denied entry into the West Bank. He said his interest in the West Bank was mostly for the religious sites. "I am interested in all the holy places in the West Bank and especially the places where Jesus Christ was born and started out. I feel that it is very wrong that the Israelis do not allow me to visit those places," Dr. Uno said. Nevertheless, he admitted he was proud to know that he was blacklisted as it meant that people read his work. "I wrote a book entitled 'If You Understand Jews You Understand The World' that Times magazine as being an anti-Semitic and anti Zionist." The commotion that resulted from the book was very good because that was when the Japanese began to understand the truth about Zionism. That is why I was blacklisted. When I tried to go to the West Bank and was refused entry, the was proud to know that they were true." He continued saying that although media in Japan treats the situation in the West Bank in a balanced way, the media is controlled by people influenced by Zionist thought. "Many businessmen have told rumours about me being blacklisted were confirmed and I me that the media handling is not accurate when it comes to coverage of the West Bank events," Dr. Uno said adding that he is glad people in Japan have started to realise that. Dr. Uno said that he had decided to come to Amman for many reasons. He said that Jananese husinessmen were interested in investing in Jordan, and he wanted to be the person to introduce these businessmen here for investment purposes. He added that before visiting Jordan many Japanese businessmen showed interest in the Kingdom. "If these businessmen come to Jordan to invest I believe it would be a great opportunity for them to go to the West Bank as well." Dr. Uno said. "I want them to see what is happening in the West Bank first hand."

Dr. Uno was in Jordan with his interpreter, harvyo Katayama and his secretary. Naomi Moriguchi. also with him was Dale Crowley Jr., who is a radio broadcaster in Washington DC for a daily programme on moral, political and Middle East issues.

Mr. Crowley has written anti-Zionist and Middle East books.

The group left Amman for Washington DC expressing satisfaction with the visit.

Western envoys in Lebanon

(Continued from Page 1)

"This is the first time that a British minister has been here since 1985 and you might say it has been too long. But the circumstances haven't been all that easy," said Hogg, protected by about 10 British embassy guards, Lebanese troops and policemen.

The missing Britons among the 12 western hostages in Lebanon are journalist John McCarthy kidnapped on the airport road in April 1986, Church of England envoy Terry Waite, who disappeared in January 1987, and retired pilot Jack Mann taken in May 1989.

Asked if he would negotiate with the kidnappers, Hogg said.
"As you know the British government position has been a long established one that we make no deals over hostages. That has been our position for many years and it will remain so."

Waldheim in Iran

Austrian President Kurt Waldheim arrived in Tehran Sunday on the first visit to Iran by a western head of state since the 1979 Islamic revolution.

He was greeted at the airport by Iranian President Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, the Iranian News Agency IRNA reported. Waldheim, a former United Nations secretary-general who is largely shunned by western leaders because of his World War II service in the German army, will follow his four-day state visit to Tehran with a two-day working visit to Syria.

Accompanied by Foreign Minister Alois Mock and a delegation of Austrian business leaders, he was expected to discuss prospects for a Middle East settlement following the Gulf war and the fate of western hostages in Lebanon.

Waldheim said on arrival he would explore ways of expanding already friendly relations between the two nations, IRNA firmed last week that it had asked Mock to intervene with Iranian authorities to seek the release of some of the 12 western hostages believed held by pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon.

Iran says it has limited influence over the groups, Waldheim also said Austria had set up a field hospital in Iran for Iraqi refugees and planned to provide more facilities for them. His visit was condemned Saturday by the Iranian opposition Mujahedin Khalq, which branded it an "unholy journey" in a teleaid. gram to Waldheim from opposi-tion leader Massoud Rajavi.

WHAT'S GOING ON

The following listings are compiled from monthly bulletins and the daily Arabic press. Readers are advised to verify the listed time and place with the concerned institutions.

EXHIBITION

x Exhibition of photographs by Bernard Guilot at the French Cultural Centre.

☆ Comprehensive book exhibition at the Royal Cultural Centre. x Exhibition of paintings by Iraqi artist Abdul Jabbar Seiman at Alia Art Gallery, Insurance Building, 1st Circle.

☆ French film entitled "Melodie en sous-sol' at the French Cultural Centre - 8:00 p.m.

Refinery workers renew demands for higher pay

By Isam Qadamani Special to the Jordan Times

AMMAN — A dispute over payment between workers at the Jordan Petroleum Refinery Company (JPRC) and the company management is resurtacing after a break of more than three years, with the workers demanding substantial increments in view of the rising cost of living in Jordan.

The workers are demanding that the management pay them JD 20 as a monthly cost of living allowance, and introduce other measures related to the health insurance scheme. They also demand that the company increased its contribution to the scheme's fund from 10 to 15 per cent.

In 1988, the JPRC workers union staged a strike to back demands for better pay; with the 200 as of April 1991.

able to secure some of their demands. Workers say that the settlement came when the Kingdom was faced with difficult conditions they had to accept the limited pay

The management says that sales of oil products have recently declined and this gives an indication that the revenues and the profits would not rise to the level of the previous years. Therefore, the management insists that it cannot give any raise to the work-

The workers union was encouraged to make a bid for the increments this year in view of the liberal increments, given to senior company officials by the management, ranging from JD 20 to JD

nian Labour Unions they were made their demands based on the company's large profits in 1989. They stress that they receive small wages for the amount of work they do compared with other government and private sectors institutions.

The workers union, which issued a statement outlining it demands, hinted that they could be pursuing a course other than mere protests should the management fail to meet the demands within two weeks from now. The statement said that the managements' rejection of the demands could only negatively reflect on the company's operations and remain a source of dispute and dissatisfaction.

The JPRC, which was established in 1956, is governed by a board of directors of 12, it has a paid up capital of JD 32 million.

Overtime allowance reinstated

AMMAN (J.T.) — The govern- extending office hours to eight ment will reinstate a 30 per cent allowance given to government officials doing overtime work at their departments, and the concerned employees will get the allowance as of this month provided they do at least eight hours of office work, an announcement

The announcement was made in a statement issued by the prime minister's office which said that the allowance would be the right of every employee if his or her department required extra duty, per day.

The measure applies to those employees who used to work under a system separate from that of the Civil Service Commission (CSC) and who recently were included int he CSC system. Before joining the CSC system, these employees used to receive the 30 per cent allowance, but stopped receiving it when the working hours were reduced.

The statement also announced that employees of the Telecommunications Corporation (TCC)

will be working for eight hours 2 day, instead of seven, and will be paid the 30 per cent allowance. Normally, government offices open at eight in the morning and close at two in the afternoon. The departments which work overtime open at 7:30 a.m. and close at 3:30 p.m.. Employees of other departments, like Jordan Radio, the post offices and hospitals. work day and night shifts, in accordance with a special arrangement by their manage-

SSC studies ways to secure health insurances

AMMAN (J.T.) — The Social Security Corporation (SSC) hopes to apply a health insurance scheme to benefit all citizens covered by the SSC law and studies on this subject, now under way, are expected to be completed before the end of 1991.

The announcement was made by SSC Director-General Mohammad Al Saqqaf who said that health insurance was one of the basic requirements of the SSC law but it had not been applied for more than 10 years since the SSC came into being.

Addressing a meeting of the beads of SSC departments, Mr. Saggaf also announced that the corporation would open two new branches in Amman to cope with view of the huge increase of the number of beneficiaries. He told the meeting that the SSC was seeking to establish an investment company with a number of financiers from Jordan and abroad, especially expatriates, in order to initiate income - generating projects in Jordan and find work for the unemployed.

"Currently the SSC is studying the prospect of setting up a hotel the Dead Sea to serve as a therapeutical centre, plus two other hospitals in Amman and Irbid," he said.

According to SSC officials, the Dead Sea project would cost JD 12 million and would include a are bank deposits.

the increasing responsibilities in minimum of 10 per cent German equity. The Germans would also guarantee an annual 55 per cent occupancy rate for 10 years, they

> Mr. Saqqaf told the Jordan Times last month that the SSC would be willing to invest in expanding projects or in setting up new enterprises provided that they show a high level of profitability or an acceptable level, or about seven per cent, for evajects socio-economic nature.

According to Mr. Saggaf, the SSC investments now total about JD 400 million, of which about JD 136 million, or 34 per cent.

Jordan to instal, expand power network in Yemen

SANAA (Petra) — The Jordan electrification project in Yemen. Electricity Authority (JEA) will implement part of a national grid project in Yemen at the cost of $1.6 million plus 1.1 million Yemeni rivals under an agreement signed here between JEA and the Yemeni Electricity Cor-

The project entails linking the power systems in the northern and southern parts of Yemen, a stretch of about 300 kilometres. through a 132 kilovolt network connecting Taaz and Aden and including five main transformer

The agreement also provides for expanding the power network of Aden and Taaz and supplying electricity to nearly 14,000 subscribers in the first stage of an

The total cost of the project is estimated to reach $70 million which will be supplied through a loan from the Arab Fund for Economic and Social Develop-

JEA Director General Mohammad Saeed Arafeh and Mohammad Abdul Aleem Alwan, deputy minister of electricity and water in Yemen, signed the agreement in the Yemeni capital and held talks to expand the current cooperation between the two countries in power-related fields, like power generation and distribution.

Talks also covered prospects for promoting joint cooperation in exploiting natural gas in Yemen to generate electricity, a technique similar to that followed by JEA at Al Risheh gas fields in

Jordanian-Yemeni cooperation in power-related fields dates back to 1988 when JEA started training Yemeni personnel in Jordanian energy projects, and the two sides agreed on coordinating their efforts in the production of electrical appliances.

In 1989 the two sides signed an agreement providing for mutual cooperation in electricity generation, maintenance and management, the development of power generating units and setting up power control units, installing transformer stations and power

62,000 students to sit for second part of 'tawjihi exams

AMMAN (J.T.) - More than 62,000 students who completed their secondary education are expected to sit for the second part of the tawjihi (secondary schools certificate examination) on Tues-

The examination, organised by the Ministry of Education in Jordan, will be taken by 62,749 male and female students in 837 examination halls in Jordan and one hall in Tunis for students following the Jordanian educational system, according to an official at the Ministry of Education.

The students will be sitting for the literary, scientific, commercial, agricultural, industrial, nursing and hotel management examination set by the ministry.

The official said that all arrangements had been made by the ministry for there examina-

The first part or mid-year tawjihi examination, was taken by the same students in January of this year, and the final results will

July, well before the universities and community colleges reopen for the new academic year.

Ministry of Education Secretary-General Munther Al Masri said on Jordan Television Saturday evening that the sets of examinations for different subjects were prepared secretly by ministry-appointed teachers. He said that the process of marking and appraising of papers, followed by feeding the computers with the results, was conducted without any complications and was always correct.

Dr. Al Masri was replying to accusations by students and parents that the ministry's process of producing the result was at fault and that many students were shocked after being told by their teachers that they had done well, only to be faced with dissatisfying not be known until the end of ded that more time should be allowed by the ministry for the students to answer the questions. which, they said, more often than not, are above the standards of the students capabilities.

Most of the students present on the television programme deman-

A great number of the students complained that they find special difficulty in answering the English language examination and Dr. Masri said that this point would be taken into consideration. "In fact, the ongoing educational reform programme has .drawn up plans for downgrading what is believed by the students to be a high standard English examination," he said, Dr. Masri also announced that English would be one of the optional

A general conference, held under the patronage of His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan in 1987, decided on a number of steps to be taken to overhaul the educational system in Jordan.

Rabran (G) RICES

By Walced Sadi

Chairman of the Board of Directors:

MARMOUD AL KAYED Director General:

MOHAMMAD AMAD

Editor-in-Chief:

GEORGE S. HAWATMEH

Editorial and advertising offices:

Jordan Press Foundation. University Road, P.O. Box 6710, Amman, Jordan.

Telephones: 667171/6, 670141-4

Telex: 21497 ALRAI JO Faccimile: 661242

The Jordan Times is published daily except Fridays. Subscription and advertising rates are available from the iordan Times advertising department.

Social contract enacted

NOW THAT the National Charter has been duly adopted at a conference comprising representatives of the people, the stage is set for translating its ideals and principles into legislations. As His Majesty King Hussein has said Sunday, 33 the occasion of the adoption of the Charter, an entirely 12277 era has been ushered into the country and the new encch requires of all Jordanians ever more diligence and bordwork lest the democratic process in the Kingdom deviate from its course and plunge the country into a new political and social quagmire.

The King's speech also highlighted the decision to follow the democratic path in Jordan, a process be described as Exterersible. "There is no return" from the democratic course, the King told the cheering audience. The monarch ciso emphasised that democracy played a main role in the mational security of the Kingdom. The King emphasised the zeed to preserve pluralism in Jordanian democracy, which he described as indispensable and the best guarantee against the tyranny of the one party rule.

To be sure the translation of the articles of the Charter into deeds cannot be done in one giant leap but rather in a hast of carefully taken steps leading to the final goal. In such a process, there will surely be much debate and arguments ascut the full intents and purposes of the various provisions of the Charter. In other words, the interpretation of the Charter will undergo much trials and tribulations in the course of the upcoming months and even years. Laws drafted in its wake will be gauged to determine whether they reflect faithfully the spirit of the Charter.

In this vein there will always be fears that the Charter will and up being encroached upon as the constitution of the land had been infringed upon repeatedly in the past and with impunity. The issue that would arise in this context is what indicial organ can be entrusted with the task of adjudicating the projected challenges to the sundry legislations that are expected to be enacted-under its-purview. The projected constitutional court will have jurisdiction over issues arising cut of the constitution itself but not the Charter. And the fact that the Charter has no force of law would necessarily reader the adjudication of disputes arising from it impracdeal. Of course, contestants can always fall back to the constitution which remains the basic organic law of the yet all such issues need not discourage Jordanians from attempting to govern themselves in accordance with the newly articulated standards. Being basically a code of conduct, or as the King repeatedly described it, a social contract, Jordanians of all walks of life and of all decominations and affiliations should have no trouble hencuring this contract provided their is will to do just that. The country is blessed with so many time-bonoured traditions that proved their worth and relevance ever since the Great Arab Revolt had set the stage for the establishment of the Hashemite Kingdom and the other Arab states in the region. The unwritten laws that form Jordan's common law have been in the making since independence and the new National Charter is but part of this process that Jordanians will zealously guard and promote.

ARABIC PRESS COMMENTARIES

ALL three Jordanian Arabic dailies Sunday discussed the National Charter which will be announced by His Majesty King Hussein and said that the document marks a turning point in the history of the Jordanian state. The 2,000 personalities gathering to hear the King's speech and the birth of the charter represent all sectors of the public which is eager to see the charter that has been described as the proper tool to organise political pluralism in the Kingdom, Al Ra'i Arabic daily said, the charter, the paper said, underlines a host of basic principles and common grounds for all political groups and all sectors about which there can be no difference in views. The 60 members of the National Commission that prepared the charter were carefully chosen to represent all schools of thought and all political orientations in the country; and there is no doubt that their work reflects their aspirations and those of the Jordanian people, the paper noted. The paper described the charter as a national achievement at a moment when the Arab Nation in general and the Jordanians in particular are facing immense challenges. It said that the charter presents a common ground for action on the part of the various groups who can hold constructive dialogues for the sake of reaching the best formula to safeguard national interests.

A columnist in Sawt Al Shaab Arabic daily takes up the example of a Jordanian doctor who works in a garden after waiting for years for a job that never came. Ahmad Dhiban says the Jordanian doctor who prefers anynomity had garduated from Bulgaria and submitted one application after another to the Civil Service Commission and the Health ministry to get a job anywhere in Jordan. The writer says he has received a letter from this Jordanian doctor informing him that his mother who had served as a cleaner at one of the girls schools can no more go to work as she is 67 years old and has become blind and that his father was a cleaner working for the Greater Amman Municipality. For this reason, this doctor decided to take up any kind of work, and now he is employed as a gardener working for a rich man in Amman, cutting the grass and digging to cover part of his daily expenses, says the writer. The writer expresses the view that Jordan abounds with young men and women who have completed their higher studies at the university but were unable to find work and had to turn to any job in order to make a living and become independent. The writer appeals to the Jordan medical association the Health Ministry and the Civil Service Commission to try harder to find jobs for those who had applied for them for many years, and are in bad need of the work to support a needy family. He also appeals to unemployed Jordanians to take any job that can ensure at least the minimum level of income instead of remaining idle.

Weekly Political Pulse

UNDP is on the right track

IT IS high time that the U.N. Development Programme (UNDP) made its aid to poor countries contingent on military spending curbs and progress towards the attainment of U.N. human rights standards. In its most recent report, UNDP head William Draper ventured to say something which was hitherto considered taboo and untouchable. He said point blank that lack of political commitment and not lack of financial resources is the root cause for the continuing despair in the developing countries and the real cause of human neglect. By naming the rising and wasteful military expenditures as the principal culprit for the cycle of despair and want in the poor countries of the world, he highlighted something that should have been mentioned a long time ago. He also called the inefficient public spending, the creation of prestige projects and the proliferation of corruption as also features of many poor countries which in their cumulative sense doom these countries to perpetual under-development and misery, in every sense of the word. Mr. Draper estimates that no less than $50 billion are being misused in Third World countries. The UNDP chief also estimates that $20 billion would be more than enough to address the basic human development needs of the peoples of such countries. For this purpose the UNDP has compiled a Human Development Index on which Japan and Canada are listed as spending most wisely.

As interesting and valuable is this UNDP exercise, it offers little more than already known and accepted propositions. There is hardly any country in the world which does not see the organic link between misuse of available funds, including exaggerated military spending, and under-development which is the curse that has afflicted almost all of the developing states and doomed them to backwardness and deprivation. What I find more interesting and relevant is the UNDP's Human Freedom Index which purports to establish a link between development and human rights. This is where the UNDP has cut new grounds for spelling out something that should have been said many decades ago. And for the UNDP, which enjoys a reputation for cold-blooded adherence to economic and financial objectives, to come out in the open and say out loud that economic development cannot be seriously pursued without respect for the international norms on human rights and that, henceforth, it will make human rights a specific criteria for extending assistance to poor and even rich countries, is truly something of a breakthrough for which the present leadership of the UNDP deserves every credit and appreciation. The question that remains unanswered is why it took UNDP so long to establish the connection between human rights and economic development. In this context, Sweden was placed on the top of the honour list for having attained 38 out of 40 possible freedoms and rights chronicled in the Index.

This new UNDP perspective augurs well for the continuing campaign to create a universal culture for human rights. Mr. Draper and his colleagues would be well advised if they make their participation in the debate on human rights issues even more pronounced and accentuated. Until this point in time, UNDP involvement in the various U.N. fora on human rights has been coy and restricted to observing and taking notes at a time when it can take effective initiatives in most of these bodies. Take for example the U.N. Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, charged with the mandate of implementing the respect of the international Covenant on Economic, Social and Calmai Rights. Even in the U.N. Human Rights Committee, entrusted with the task of monitoring the adherence of states to the International Civil and Political Rights covenant there is room for the UNDP active participation. This is not to mention the U.N. Commission on Human Rights, its sub-commission and the various working groups created by them.

In the U.N. human rights jargon, it has often been said that whereas the countries of the world need time to develop economically and socially, there is no time constraints on the need to respect the minimal civil and political rights as spelled out in the various international instruments. This is where UNDP can pitch in and say its words of wisdom based on a wealth of experience in the field as well as in the offices of its headquarters in New York City. All such proposals suggest that UNDP should have a higher profile in the human rights debates in addition to its traditional role in discussions centered on disarmament. This higher profile requires in turn, a stronger publicity campaign to reflect faithfully what is being done behind closed doors.

All in all the IMIDD is on the sink and the sink and the stronger publicity campaign to

All in all the UNDP is on the right track for highlighting the human rights issue in addition to disarmament and environment at a time when the foundation of democracy has become indispensable for economic development.

National Charter is social contract that will protect democracy, ensure political pluralism

The following is the text of His Majesty King Hussein's address to the opening of the Jordanian National Congress to endorse the National Charter convened June

In the name of God the Compassionate, the Merciful.

MY brothers and sisters, members of the Jordanian National

We thank God for bringing us together, one people united in the goodness of our purpose. I am happy to welcome you today and to convey through you, to all the people of Jordan, my great appreciation and pride. We are united in our determination to take a new stride in the life of our nation, a step which brings us closer to the aims which we have identified together. We take this step under the umbrella of a national consensus that the political process of parliamentary democracy is irreversible. We proceed along this path steadily, and with awareness and a sense of responsibility, which proved the soundness of our choice and gave us the confidence in our ability to face the challenge of change to the better. We have risen to every challenge that has faced our nation bravely and responsibly.

We meet today at a time when our nation stands at a critical and dangerous crossroad. The path which we select will decide the future of this country and its ability to interact successfully or otherwise with the emerging new world order. There is not a single state in the world, no matter how big or powerful, that can live in isolation from the influence of other states. All states together form a network of complex relations, dictated by mutual dependence, irrespective of the states' individual willingness or unwillinguess to interact with others. We should remember that we, as members of the international community, have responsibilities over and above our national and pan-Arab duties. We have a responsibility to bear the message the goodness, justice and equality, for the glory of our nation and of mankind.

Brothers and sisters.

Since our decision to resume the democratic process the achievements of our country have been a source of pride. We take pride in the efforts of the political and intellectual forces in our country, but primarily we take pride in the awareness, responsibility, and vigilance of our citizens when our democratic process faced the gravest challenge possible, that of the Gulf crisis. Our democracy has emerged from the test not only unscathed, but more solid.

We resumed the democratic process at a difficult time of the life of our nation: The world had just emerge from the Cold War. Many nations, ours included, found themselves facing a new situation and many possibilities. The disappearance of disputes between the Eastern and Western camps, relations which this development introduced, caused various countries to reorient themselves either towards self-reliance, or towards coalescing into groupings based on regional, economic, or national considerations, or a combination of these considerations. In Jordan, escalating political and economic pressures put us before a major challenge which seemed to exceed our abilities. Nevertheless, our decision to resume the democratic process, and our determination to proceed along this path despite the pressures and challenges, attest to our resolve, and to the soundness of our judgment and direction. The unfolding events have proven that democracy is truly the third pillar of our national security, and the solid foundation on which to build a united and proud nation whose intrinsic strength, is the collective will of its people. It was clear to us from the beginning that true democracy to be real should meet all the following prerequisites: 1. Separation between the executive, legislative, and judicial authorities. We have always been careful to maintain this separa-

accordance with the constitution. Each one of these authorities must realise its limits and not trespass on the domain of another 2. Holding general parliamentary elections in accordance with the law. This is what we accomplished in November 1989, when the elections were held in an

tion, and we shall uphold it in atmosphere of fairness, freedom, and honest competition. 3. The practice of national politics on the basis of pluralism in accordance with the principle of constructive dialogue which is the distinctive feature of democratic life. Truth, in a democratic state, is not monopolised by an individual nor by a group. Truth, ultimately, is the product of a national dialogue leading to con-

In order to allow for and protect political pluralism, and by extension, to protect democracy, it was necessary to lay down a national charter which would be the national, conceptual and referential document for political action in Jordan.

Hence, the Royal Commission for Drafting the National Charter was formed on April 9, 1990. The completion of the Commission's work marks another major step towards democracy. We meet to-day to present the Charter to you, or, more precisely, to all the citizens whom you represent either by virtue of your positions, or by your selection to different popular functions. We were careful that the Commission should intellectual and political schools of thought, as well as their economic, social, and academic dimensions, the bedowin and urban populations, Muslims and Christians, deputies and senators, men and women. Therefore, the draft Charter which we now present to you is the product of a sincere intellectual effort. It took all the attention, care, and devotion of the members of the Royal Commission, to produce this document. Commitment to its content, and acting in accordance with its guidance, will constitute the sound basis for political pluralism, which will complete the prerequisites of our democratic process, and through which we shall realise one of our most notable ambitions, which is to build a model nation. This document is not merely a working manual. It is the umbrella under which we unite. It is not merely an expression of various common denominators of our political thoughts. It is the common denominator for us all, defining that which does not bear controversy in building the nation for which we aspires, consolidating national unity which is the guarantee of our strength, and narrowing tik between our efforts, so that they can all be channelled for the higher interest of the nation. The consensus over our basic precepts and objectives, which are both beyond doubt, necessitates the we draft a social contract that guides us and constitutes the represent the people in all their

Brothers and sisters,

cents and objectives.

People and nations show their true mettle when faced with crises, challenges, and dangers. The events that took place in the Arab World in less than eighteen months proved the true mettle of the Arab people of Jordan, which has been polished and honed by yardstick by which we measure, over the stretch between our precontinuous challenges and their you realise that this dialogue is consequences, till it has become a concerned primarily with the source of pride to us. By the grace of God, every attempt to weaken us only makes us stronger. Our resolve is burdened by our trials, and our loyalty to our nation intensifies whenever it is tested. Despite the injustice and the misunderstanding which we have suffered, we remain confident that truth and goodwill will triumph in the end. Therefore our great responsibilities towards our nation, our people, and mankind are more certain now than

Our national consensus, which founded on, and strengthened by our democratic process, enabled us to take the position of ness that democracy cannot be our choice, thus reflecting the complete without political pluralhopes, aspirations, and essence of cism. Pluralism is the only guaranthe people of Jordan. We realise the against all forms of dictanow that democracy is the force torship and despotism, particularthat cannot weaken. It alone is by despotism by the one-party capable or building a united and The guarantee of the success of resolute Jordan, which belongs to pluralism lies in its respect of the all its people, and which enjoys the loyalty, and resolve of all its challenges and pressures into one the product of an extensive and line of confrontation. Dangers and unjust onslaughts against us have closed our ranks against the covetous, and forged us into one Jordan. family that sees its real honour. prosperity, and happiness in loyalty to a nation that respects its freedom, its Arab Islamic heritage, and its human message. In the face of all this, you bear a great and historic responsibility to support the National Charter. so we can proceed to the next stage of our democratic process, the stage of pluralism which will be signified by the formation of political parties.

I do not wish to go into details here. This is your responsibility which I am confident that you will execute with care and alertness. If we agree that democracy is the practice of dialogue which precedes consensus, I am certain that search for truth and a consensus over it. There is not a single party that can claim to possess truth. If such a party existed, it would be the enemy of the nation, of dialogue, and of truth combined. The framework of all this is freedom, which is the basis of dialogue, the basis of truth, and the basis of democracy.

Brothers and sisters, members of the Jordanian National Congress

Jordan, which we all love, and for which we have all worked, stands with you today at the threshold of a new era. Whether we are successful in traversing it depends on our common awareconstitution, and in accepting the guidance of a clear, practical, and ople. comprehensive guide. This guide We have been united by the is the National Charter which is deep dialogue between representatives of the different political and intellectual orientations in

I salute you again, brothers and sisters, and I pray to God to grant you success in your task. I also look forward to your endorsement of the National Charter which would highlight your re-spect for human rights. It would achieve a victory for the fortitude of Jordan, the unity of its people, and the dignity of your children and grandchildren, in a proud, secure, and free country. It would consolidate and protect the foundations of political pluralism which would complete our democratic process. I pray to God to guide and assist us to fulfill his wish and to act for the benefit of

Charter paves the way for pluralism

The following is the full text of the address made by His Majesty King Hussein after the endorsement of the National Charter by the Jordanian National Congress on June 9.

In the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful

Ladies and gentlemen, members of the Jordanian National Con-

My dear brothers and sisters, We thank God for guiding us to do what satisfies Him, for uniting ns in seeking the good of our country and people, and for uniting us in a pledge of cooperation, and mutual support. I thank you sincerely for blessing the National Charter and endorsing it. I am confident that every Jordanian shares with me, in this historic moment, feelings of happiness, appreciation, and gratitude for your national decision. The decision which you have made today signifies many great things, pri-marily that our democratic process is consolidating and taking root, and that our democratic institutions are on their way to completion.

You have demonstrated the deep level of awareness and national commitment which I always trusted you to possess. From this day the National Charter becomes a pledge that binds us, and a trust which we shall keep and protect, with the assistance and guidance of God.

Your endorsement of the National Charter signifies that the path of political phuralism is now clear, free from pitfalls and deviations. Since the constitution is the foundation of the state and the fence that safeguards it, so the National Charter is its conceptual reference in the process of nation building and the quest for progress. The next natural step will be to complete the establishment of political pluralism, which will be done in two stages: 1- To amend the law on the constitution, and under the guidance of the principles of the National Charter. 2- To permit the formation of political parties in accordance with the anticipated legislation on political parties. I hope that our national political arena will not formation of political parties in accordance with the rules of the

see a profusion of political parties, because overcrowding impedes progress.

Brothers and sisters, Today, as we cross a new threshold in the progress of Jor-dan and its political development, we must be conscienscious of the fear of God and the interest of the nation. We must focus our attention on the serious challenges facing us, and the dangerous problems accompanying them. We have a great deal of work to do, demanding reflection, respect of the rational process, confluence of opinions, and the closing of the ranks. The persistent financial problem and the economic crisis with its resultant social problems, remain the top priorities of our national political agenda. Naturally, your are aware of the reasons why these problems have escalated. Some of these reasons are structural, related to the imbalance between our population and resources, mainly water. Others are exogenous, such as the effects of the Gulf crisis. The manifestations of these problems are numerous and well known to you. The most obvious and painful, perhaps, is the rise in the number of people living below the poverty line which has reached a third of the Kingdom's population. Another is the rise in unemployment to a terrifying level, amounting to 20 per cent. after Jordan had received the third wave of mass immigrants in less than forty years. The imbalance in the pyramid of the working force and type of employment needed has also become more acute as a result of outdated social and cultural inhibitions which are no longer compatible with the requirements of our

It would not be sufficient to talk about these problems. Each needs a tremendous effort to cope with it. What is required is reasoning, legislation, action, guidance, and patience. Foremost, what is needed is a comprebensive and realistic perception of the reality of our situation and of the challenges that face us every day, regardless of our size and location. We shall not be saved, nor shall we gain anything by closing our eyes to what is happening around us, and how it affects us. We live in an age of science and technology, and in a world of mutual interests. We live in the age of the quest for a better life, where human dignity and human rights are respected.

Therefore, we must work diligently to benefit from our experience and that of others. We must remember that despotism, isolationism, and social disharmony will only bring about more backwardness, more irrationality, and more dilapidation. Democracy must not be mistaken for irresponsible freedom. It is not a licence for libel and defamation. It is not a licence to cross the demarcation lines separating authorities. It is not a silk cloak under which to conceal poisoned daggers. It is not an invitation for each of the authorities to set traps for the other at the expense of the public good, instead of cooperating to promote it. It is not an umbrella for terrorising the minds of others. It is not the means for the despotism of a majority against a minority. That would lead to anarchy which would kill democracy and bring about the ruination of the land and people. A democratic society is one that respects the law, because it is the lawmaker. A democratic society is one of free but responsible dialogue. A democratic society is one that allows for a multiplicity of opinions, on conditions of everyone respecting the opinions of others and being committed to the public good. A democratic society is free from intimidation which expunges creativity and excellence from society. A democratic society free from despotism which paralyses it. A democratic society is one of competition free from violence, fanaticism, vindictiveness, hatreds and vendettas.

In order to protect democracy and political pluralism, and to avoid all the pitfalls which I have mentioned, we have succeeded, with God's belp, in drafting the National Charter. Nevertheless, we must not delude ourselves into thinking that democracy will be safe and sound as long as its forms are in place. The Constitution and the National Charter, and the laws and legislations that emanate from them, are all important building blocks of the state of law and democratic society. No less important, however, are the citizens, in every place and institution, since they embody democracy in every word our country and people. May

God protect and keep you.

I have watched closely the progress of the democratic process since the elections of 1989. and it has been, in general, satisfactory. This, in my opinion, has been due to newness of the experiment. From now on, we are all duty-bound to correct any deviations until the experiment settles to its natural path and becomes an integral part of our lives. Monitoring the process of democratisation and rectifying it is a collective responsibility which includes the executive and legislative branches, and particularly a free press.

History teaches us that democracy, when rife with vindictiveness, and anarchy, almost destroyed even its first birthplace, which was the state of Athens at the peak of its greatness under Pericles. Democracy was then practiced with vindictiveness and as a quest to settle feuds rather than in pursuit of the public good. I mention this only to stress that the threat to democracy can come primarily from people who shield themselves behind it, and who

Charter is methodical approach for reforms in all fields

The following is the text of the address made by Mr. Ahmad Obeidat, chairman of the Royal Commission for Drafting the National Charter to the Jordaman National Congress on June

In the name of God, the Comssionate, the Merciful. Your Majesty, Take to the Cultural Cultural devote the devote the m

nis dialoge rily with: rd a coust. ( a single p OSSESS (386

d, it work

ostion di

nth compa

all diske

e bassorie

क्तार्थ है

rs, mening

cional Come

we a∏ love_z

ve all mont

COJAV TE

w era. West

in traverse

्रायाचा स्टब्स

:3CT (2008) k

political place

he oak para

oms d कंक طماح وين

北 建酸

the same t

is respond t in accepting ar, prancal - unide. Tus p harrer with in esterial

Detweed 📭

वंगिरात्म 🎏

al orientation

ain, brother:

v to Goding

our test le lanonal Os

ehight 106 rights ha

for the inte

nity of its part of your one

ren. in a protect of protect plants

inplete our te i pray to fit
it us to milit for the best and people t
and keep you

portant, been to in eral portant. Since the second control of the ched dost, in chemos of elections of elections of elections of elections of elections of elections of the el

o vour east 🕫

Ladies and gentlemen, members of the Jordanian National Con-

Permit me on this occasion to salute our leader, His Majesty King Hussein, and to express, in the name of the Royal Commission for Drafting the National Charter, our enormous pleasure on the convening of this congress. We shall present to you the Draft National Charter after the Commission completed drafting it, and after I have had the bonour of submitting it to His Majesty the King on 30 December, at the conclusion of a comprehensive dialogue that lasted eight months.

Seventy years have passed since the state was founded. We now live in the forty fifth year since independence, and we stand in all contentment, appreciation, and pride, united behind our Hashemite leadership. We stand in reverence of the early founders, the leaders of the Great Arab Revolt, the martyrs of our nation, who sacrificed for the noble principles and gave their lives for Arab dignity and unity.

As we stand at the threshold of a critical phase of the history of our country and nation, our faith that God will grant us success is infinite, as is our confidence in the ability of our people to continue working for a better future full of good intentions and honest endeavour.

You are aware, ladies and gentlemen, that the hallmarks of a sound society are respect for human rights and the rule of reason and good charter. The progress of a nation is a function of its ability to achieve and evolve, to interact effectively with the issues of the present and the challenges of the future, and to make the changes necessary for progress while preserving its Jordanians have proven by their keen awareness: and the strength of their resolve, that responsibility, and equal opportu-

they are capable of surmounting difficulties to continue the process of nation-building, and benefitting from the experience of other nations. They have proven that they are worthy of a dignified life in freedom, where they look forward to a better future, ready to shoulder their responsibilities, eager to protect their national unity, and develop their constitutional process, faithful to their Islamic religion, committed to keeping abreast with, and contributing to civilisation. They have proven themselves committed to enrich their experience and to build a democratic, secure, responsible, and prosperous society to which all citizens contribute with a sense of responsibility. Ladies and gentlemen, members of the Jordanian National Con-

We live in an age where the need for organised and responsible political action is greater than at any time. The concept of the National Charter came to life with the dawn of democracy in this country. The general parliamentary elections at the end of 1989 were a democratic achievement, following which the idea of the Charter was crystallised. Therefore, His Majesty King Hussein decreed the formation of the Royal Commission for Drafting the National Charter. The outcome was the draft charter which the Commission presented to you in 1990, and which constitutes a comprehensive futuristic outlook to develop the creativity of Jordanians, and an advanced stride towards freeing national action from doubts and stagnation. It aims to develop popular participation and the exercise of political pluralism. Based on it, national political organisations and parties will be formed, which are bound by the constitution and by legitimacy, which believe in the democratic process, and which respect the rules of democracy, as they believe in reform and progress at all levels. These parties and organisations will be committed to national security and interest, and they will participate positively in safeguarding the basic rights of all citizens, which will consolidate democracy second chapter of the Charter, In analysing the nature of poliwhich are aimed at consolidating tical development in the Kingthe underpinnings of the state of law, were specific and in their dom, the Royal Commission sought illumination from the procorrect framework. They are decess of national struggle of the finitive, and they reassert the basic tenets of the Constitution Jordanian people and the historic depth of its leadership, at all and the continued validity of its stages. The principles of the rules that relate to these tenets. Great Arab Revolt were among To explain this concept further, the main underpinnings of the National Charter and of its basic the Commission sees that the nationalistic and progressive basic underpinnings and future outlook of the Charter, are but a tenets. Human rights and basic confirmation of the constitutional freedoms constituted the constants that define the type of rationale of the Charter, and government and the basic pillars became its most prominent feaof the political order of the state. tures and bases. The chapters on and define the demarcation lines rights and freedoms in the Charbetween the three authorities with precision and balance, in all ter are complete in their constitutional, national, international, the rights and duties outlined in and human dimensions, and withthe Constitution, without conout contradiction, which makes travening any of these constants, them a vital condition and a basic since they constitute the basic tenet of democracy as we hope to underpinning of the political. promote it. The National Charter economic, and social order of the ties a firm bond between commit-Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan. ment to the rules of the constituand they embody the country's tion in the work of the three unity and stability. branches of government on the The Charter lays down a numone hand, and on the other. ber of concepts, values, and rules to regulate national action and respect for human rights and freedoms, work to consolidate and safeguard the democratic process, and continuous and ha-outline the path forward. Its starting point is faith in God and respect for the spiritual values and beliefs of all. It asserts that Islamic Shari'a is the basic source of law, and that Arab Islamic civilisation is the basis of the national and pan-Arab identity of Jordanians, and a main pillar of its unity, independence, and progress. The Charter elevated the status of the Arabic language to its rightful place by asserting its supremacy in Jordanian society at all levels, and asserted its adoption as the language of instruction at all levels. The Charter also called for developing the language, modernising its teaching methods, encouraging the movement to Arabise and translate material from and to Arabic, and encouraging publication in Arabic in various fields of science, art, and literature. The Charter also crystallised the concept of social justice as one of the national objectives of the Jordanian state and society, in accordance with the spirit of the constitution and to realise the good of the majority. The Charter makes commitment to the principles and requirements of The outlook of the Charter social justice a framework of the exercise of democracy, and basic pillar of the state of law and political pluralism. The Charter considers the realisation of equality and justice and equal opportunities between all citizens, men and women, among the main safeguards of the democratic pro-

After defining the main parameters within which the national economy functions, and the bases of the future outlook for socioeconomic development in the country, the Charter stressed the importance of the independence of economic decision and their institutionalisation. It highlighted the role of national will in developing a national productive infrastructure through optimal exploitation of resources, building the economy in the Jordanian countryside, adopting the principle of self reliance to free Jordanians for the quest of excellence, and realising complementarity between the political, economic, and social independence in the

In view of the escalation of environmental problems and their effects on humanity, and in view of the linkage between the human environment and the policies adopted by countries to protect their resources and rationalise their exploitation, and to check the deterioration that threatens their survival, and recovery, the Charter was forward looking in stating that a clean and ' balanced environment is one of human the rights and a right of citizenship. It made the preservation of the environment in Jordan and its protection against all forms of pollution a national duty for the good of present and future generations.

Since the National Charter starts from the Koranic base in respecting the humanity of mankind and protecting human dignity, the Charter makes this the focus of all activities of the state and society in Jordan. This is considered the basis for raising sound and productive individual and the strong and cohesive family where motherhood takes its rightful place and childhood receives adequate care and security, without distinction between males and females.

The outlook of the Charter confirming women's human and constitutional right to equality. education, culture, training, work, and to be a partner with men in developing our society. It also emphasised on the role of youth and their part in developing society and rejuvenating it, in calling for channeling their efforts towards production and benefitting by their creativity in building the country and directing its in-

The Charter considers the bond of citizenship as the basis of the relationship between all Jordanians. It thus drew a practical oulook for implementing the concept of social complementarity through complementarity between policies, programmes, and legislation, and coordination between the roles of the relevant authorities to achieve social harmony and promote voluntary popular work based on national commitment, and to promote the spirit of cooperation and cohesiveness between all segments of society.

Since the ultimate objective is to build the fortitude of Jordanian society and enhance its intrinsic strength, the Charter dealt with the issue of national security in its military, economic, social, and psychological dimensions to ensure the soundness of the democratic process and to promote confidence in the institutions of state, as well as stability and a dignified life for citizens and to protect the unity and soundness of the national fabric.

In view of the organic link between the issues of culture, education, science, technology, and the media, and in view of the interrelationship between their roles and the complementarity of their objectives, the Charter proceeded to draft this chapter based on the realities of our time and dealing with the specificities of each issue in their national, pan-Arab, and internationl dimensions. It dealth with their contemporary forms, challenges, and future outlooks, so that the national education policy produces a creative and independent generation, sound of character, aware of its duties and rights, and that the process of education should contribute to promoting national commitment, the scientific rationale, and democratic spirit, to link the process of education and production and meet the country's needs of qualified manpower. The Charter highlighted the prominent central role of science and technology in developing Jordanian society, dealing with its problems, developing the natural resources of the country, and linking the realisation of these objectives with the existence of national will and a clear political decision embodied by capable institutions and open minded directorships to bring about modernisation in the framework of a developed education system in the Kingdom.

The Charter realised the real link between these dimensions

and the media and others means of popular communication, and the importance of their role in developing the convictions of the citizen, his outlooks, positions, values, as well as their role in expanding the horizons of knowledge among the public. it laid down an advanced outlook for the principles and bases of the Jordanian media, which consist of freedom and national responsibility, respect for truth and the values of the nation, highlighting the role of the mind in the progress of society, securing the rights of citizens for accurate information, securing their participation in the policies of national direction, and laying down the legislation necessary to achieve these

Since Jordan and Palestine are one Arab condition, the Charter devoted a special chapter to the Jordanian-Palestinian relationship in which it expresses the reality of this relationship and its historic and day-to-day underpinnings, in their national, pan-Arab, and international dimensions. It laid down a unitary basis for the development of this relationship which highlights its uniqueness in the past and future, and guarantees its continuity in clarity, for the right of the Palestiman people to self-determination on their national soil, to support their steadfastness under occupation, and to realise Jordanian national unity as well as the commitment to Jordanian national security under all conditions and to enhance the joint struggle of Jordanians and Palestinians in facing the Zionist expansionist designs and national challenges In the final chapter the Commission laid down its outlooks on the dimensions of the relationships between Jordan and Arab and Islamic countries and other countries. It defined the bases and outlooks of this relationship and the consequent exchange of commitments on the various levels, in accordance with the geographic and political position of Jordan and to promote its national identity as a member of the United Nations. It guaranteed the continuity of Jordan's contribution to the formation of international relations based on mutual respect between nations and their independence and right to self-determination, as well as the commitment to the principles of right, justice, equality, and just peace between nations, respect for human rights and rejection of discrimination, and international

In conclusion, the Royal Commission for Drafting the National Charter, having outlined the summary of its work to your Congress, sees that this document is a methodical approach for reform in all fields. It constitutes a national accord between the various political outlooks in the country, and a consensus on the common denominators of the various political and conceptual outlooks and national opinions. As such, it constitutes another link in our democratic process complementing the ones that proceded it, and connected to those that will follow. If you decide to endorse this draft, the National Charter will belong to the whole nation. Every generation has the right to lay down the charters that it believes will realise national, pan-Arab, and human objectives of all segments of Jordanian soci-hegemony in all their forms.

On this historic occasion, we are called on to shoulder our responsibilities and work diligently to build our nation through our strong faith, and advanced scientific accomplishments, looking forward to the future, aware of every enlightened human experience, confident of ourselves, the nobility of our people and the unity of our glorious Arab nation. keeping our faith in God alone, confident of the inevitability of the triumph of right no matter

Charter paves way for pluralism

(Continued from page 4)

abuse democracy in the very name of democracy, whether they do so deliberately or inadvertently. Democracy does not consist merely of institutions. It is a tradition and a way of life that distinguishes society.

I make this clear reference to emphasise that the nation comes first and foremost. Every political party that comes to life in democracy and under its protection, must necessarily be a national party in its basic tenets, objectives, methods, funding and affiliation. Any departure from this fact would not only be a violation of democracy, but an act against the nation. This, of course would not prevent a party from having a pan-Arab or pan-human dimension, but true nationalism must always be the real criterion for political action on the national, and protect human rights in a positive atmosphere of freedom, pan-Arab, or human levels. We must remember that it is only natural for a nation to have its own priorities according to its resources, size, demography, and responsibilities. Just as others do not allow us to define their priorities for them, we allow none to define ours. The possibility of a confluence of priorities and objectives between Arab states, or some of them, opens the door for the confluence of thought between various parties, without sacrificing one's national interest. What is not permissible is the development of a state of party subservience to outsiders. Should this happen, this the party would then lose its national character and violate the principles of the National Charter. Perhaps the best remarks with lanced national development.

This in order to strengthen the political, economic, and social structure of the state, enhance national security, and deepen awareness of popular participation, develop local administration in the provinces, all within a framework of cooperation and complementarity between public and private institutions, and while maintaining a balance between the citizen's rights and

Since the Constitution is the base, the Charter drew from its constants in defining the nature of the government and people of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan. It stated the necessity of commitment to these constants

and legitimacy, in order to strengthen the unity of the people and leadership of Jordan. The Royal Commission for Drafting the National Charter as it joins the people of Jordan in taking pride concern to respect and preserve its sanctity, emphasises its clear understanding of, and conviction

the points and proposals in the

the constitution, and in their

which to conclude my address to you on this historic national occasion, as we stand on the threshold of practising political pluralism are those of the founder of the Kingdom, my grandfather, the late King Abdullah may he rest in peace. This is part of his address to the members of the first elected Jordanian House of Deputies, on October 20, 1947.

"There is no doubt that all people are born free, and that no one may usurp or contravene any of their rights, because God has protected everyone's rights from others. Similarly, we must not misinterpret freedom and commit the mistake of others, where everyone acts of his own volition and proceeds to contravene the rights and integrity of other people, seeking to justify such acts in he name of freedom. Freedom protects people from other peo ple. There should not be lies, slander, and aggression, but brotherhood, equality, and compassion. Nations become free when they enrich their freedom with the nobility of their ideals and harmonious fraternity, seeking to protect their rights through law and order, compassionately and in peace, each within his rights, which must be protected without hesitation or delay. Everybody is free as long as he respects the freedom of others. He becomes an aggressor the moment he contravenes against the rights of others."

I repeat my thanks to you and I pray to God to grant me and you guidance and wisdom.

May God's peace and blessings be with you.

(Continued from Page 1) reference in the process of nation

and with no opposition by senators, parliament members, representatives of professional and trade unions, electted municipal and village councils, journalists, writers, prominent personalities representing popular groups in urban and rural regions and the badia as well as cabinet members and senior officials. Voting was conducted through standing up, and all the members of the audience including His Majesty King Hussein stood up in a show of unanimous support for the National Charter.

Expressing appreciation to the audience for blessing the charter, King Hussein said: "Your endorsement of the National Charter signifies that the path of political pluralism is now clear, free from pitfalls and deviations. Since the Constitution is the foundation of the state and the fence that safeguards it, so the National Charter is its conceptual building and the quest for prog-

The National Charter comprises eight chapters dealing with the reason for introducing the charter itself, political pluralism Jordan's national security, economy, social affairs, culture and educa-tion, Jordanian-Palestinian relations and Jordan's relations with Arab, Islamic and foreign coun-

In his address to present the

FOR RENT

DELUXE & SUPER DELUXE

APARTMENTS, VILLAS

& SEMI VILLAS

GET THE BEST AT

IAMAL REAL ESTATE

JUST CALL

835859

charter, Commission Chairman

2,000 delegates bless National Charter

King Hussein said: "I thank you sincerely for blessing the National Charter. I am confident that every Jordanian shares with me in this historic moment, feelings of happiness appreciation and gratitude for your national decision. The decision which you have made today signifies many great things primarily that our democratic process is consolidating and taking root and that our democratic institutions are on their way to completion."

Obeidat described it as laying down a number of concepts, values and rules to regulate national action and outline the path forward for the nation.

Based on the charter. Obeidat noted, national politcal organisations and parties will be formed, which are bound by the constitution and by legitimacy which believe in democratic process and which respect the rules of demo-Obeidat also noted that in analysing the nature of political development in the Kingdom, the Royal Commission, which was entrusted with its task in April of 1990, sought illumination from the process of national struggle of the Jordanian people and the historic depth of its leadership at all stages."

He stressed that "the principles of the Great Arab Revolt were among the main underpinnings of the National Charter and of its basic nationalistic and progressive tenets."

Obeidat said that the National Charter ties a firm bond between commitment to the rules of the constitution in the work of the three branches of government on the one hand, and on the other. respect for human rights and freedoms, work to consolidate and safeguard the democratic process, and continuous and balanced national development.

According to Obeidat, the charter considers the bond of citizenship as the basis for the relationship between all Jorda-

Since April of last year Royal Commission members have been holding series of meetings to reach common ground on which to build on and eventually finalise the National Charter. (see

TOAN MARKET HACE

THE PROFESSIONALS ALWAYS CHOOSE THE RELIABLE

PACKING, AIR FREIGHT FORWARDING, DOOR-to DOOR SERVICES AND DELIVERIES, CUSTOMS CLEARANCE, TICKETS AND, RESERVATIONS.

AMIN KAWAR&SONS TEL 604676 604696 P.O.BOX 7806

The first & best Chinese Restaurant in Jordan İst Circle, Jabal Amman, near Ahliyyah Girls School Take away is available Open daily 12:00-3:30

р.т. 6:30-Midnight

Tel. 638968

PEKING RESTAURANT AUTHENTIC elegani colorful atmosphere

cali

Estate

a b d o u n

Tel. $10605, $19609, Fax: $19520,

Recardo R 22/61 4 Rent & Sale Many villas and apartment Amman's exclusive gift shop are available for rent and Italian shoes, sale - furnished or unfurleather goods, Also many lots of land are watches,pens, available for sale. For further details, piess perfumes, lighters, silverware, porcelain, crystalware etc. Shmeisani - Grindleys Bank Bldg Tel. 669 457

CHEN'S

CHINESE

RESTAURANT

Mecca Street, Yarmouk

Engineers' Housing

Estate, near Kilo

Supermarket

Mongolian Barbeque for

Lunch Friday only

Tel: 818214

Come and taste our specialities

Open daily 12:00 - 3:30

6:30 - Midnight

Professional Quality in 1 Hour Service Develop your colour film at our shop and get:-

STUDIO HAIG

* JUMBO photo size 30% larger * Free enlargement 20 x 30 cm

Shmeisani - Opp. Grindlays Bank. Phone: 604042 Swefieh tel: 823891

Take away service available Open Daily 12.30-3.30 pm

Special Executive Luncheons

7.30-11.30 pm After the Philadelphia Hotel Towards 3rd circle Tel:659519 659520

687821/22 AUSTRALIA AUSTI INSURANCE SERVICES

in Jordan.

All Types Of Insurance:

· PERSONAL ACCIDENT · ENGINEERING

Jabal Amman = First Circle

Tel: 610948 Fax: 612948

TIX: 27644 AUSTI JO.

•MEDICAL TRAVEL COUPON

● CARGO

a MOTOR

FIRE

HOUSE HOLD

DAROTEL عاراوتيل Amman - Tel. 668193

P O. Box 9403 - Fax 602434 Telex 23888 DAROTL JO Ideal Residence For Expatriates and Businessmen

Agassi loses French Open to Courier

PARIS (R) — Jim Courier won the first Grand Slam title of his career, the French Open, when he beat fourth seed Andre Agassi in five sets Sunday.

The ninth-seeded Courier won the first all-American Roland Garros final for 37 years 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4.

. But the match, twice interrupted by rain and only the fifth five-set French final in the open era, was a poor advertisement for the sport.

Points were decided more often on errors than on winners and little of the atmosphere usually associated with a Grand Slam final. Both players raised their game considerably in the deciding set but a swirling wind which whipped up the clay caused problems.

Courier sealed the match in three hours 20 minutes with an ace on his first matchpoint and fell on his back in relief. It was the first men's final between two Americans since 1954, and only the fifth to go to five sets. Michael Chang had broken a 34-year drought for American men in 1989, also with a five-set victory.

Agassi, the no. 1 seed, will drop to fifth in the world rankings, and Courier will move past him to no. 1.

The match was played in a variety of weather conditions, including bright sunshine and rain which forced two delays.

Courier said the breaks enabled him to get useful advice from his coach, Jose Higueras. "I wouldn't be standing here without you," he said of his coach after the match.

Agassi, who was favored, has now lost all three of his Grand Slam finals, including last year's french Open.

It was by far the biggest payday for Courier - the winner's check of 151,660 dollars exceeded his earnings of 137,390 for all of

The men's finalists trained together at Nick Bollettieri's Tennis Academy in Florida in the mid-80s before Courier left, feeling he wasn't getting enough attention. Agassi has a 1-2 edge in their head-to-head matches, but they have split encounters at the past two French Opens.

Although both worked with Bollettieri in the mid 1980s, they were never close friends.

"We get on much better," Courier said. "We don't spend any time together, but in the past we didn't even speak." "Now we talk in the locker room and play a few exhibitions and that has helped," Courier said. "We've both grown."

Agassi was once thought to be more immature on and off the court. But after beating Boris Becker in the semifinal, he showed a kinder, gentler side.

Through the first four sets, the momentum swung sharply, with each player fully dominating the sets he won.

The fifth set was a microcosm of the full match, with Courier and Agassi each breaking service cannot touch it again with his

before Courier got a second and decisive break in the ninth game to go up 5-1. The weather was a factor, gusting hard as Agassi struggled with a slam attempt and hit the ball out to lose his serve.

Both Agassi, 21, and Courier. 20 have a similar reliance on powerful baseline games. At different stages of the match, each scored emphatic winners on blistering forehand groundstrokes.

Agassi, still coached by Bollettieri, had won four of six previous matches with Courier.

Handball becomes a sending off offence

BELFAST (R) - FIFA's year- ate confusion and anomaly. old directive on red card treatment for the professional foul becomes soccer law next month and has been reinforced by a new clause governing handball.

From July 25, the laws will require referees to punish deliberate handling which denies a scoring opportunity by sending off the quality player. This could include a goalkeeper leaving his penalty area to handle the ball.

The rule-making international football board agreed at its change designed to prevent timeannual meeting Saturday to in-corporate the FIFA guidelines wasting by goalkeepers. In fu-ture, a goalkeeper taking posses-

trained Jet Ski Lady became the longest-priced winner of the

Epsom Oaks, England's premier

The three-year-old filiy, completely disregarded by the tipsters, started the 213th running of the race at 30-1, equalling the record Odds of Vespa in 1833.

Nor was it a close-run thing. Jet

Ski Lady, ridden by Irishman

Christy Roche, dominated the race from half a mile out and went on to beat the well-favoured

Only Sun Princess, who was a 12-length winner in 1983, has ever bettered that distance in the

Trainer Jim Bolger, whose star of Gdansk ran into third place in the Epsom Derby over the same course Wednesday, said he had been expecting a good run from the U.S.-bred horse, especially Shamshir by 10 lengths.

Saturday.

Oaks.

Jet Ski Lady

EPSOM, England (R) - Irish- after recent rain.

wins Epsom Oaks

fillies' classic, in over 150 years a great chance once the rain

Some referees have considered a penalty award and a caution sufficient punishment. Argentina, Italy and Switzerland, in particular, have adopted relaxed attitudes to the directive and sought clarification.

"The three bodies asked for a ruling on their liberal interpretation but there will be no more of that" said FIFA general secretary Sepp Blatter.

The board also approved a law hands until it has been touched by another player. A proposal limiting possession by goalkeepers to six seconds was rejected. Other moves agreed: Two substitutes can be selected from 11 instead of five players at the 1994 World Cup finals. Tights or cycle shorts must be of the same colour as regulation club shorts. Two referees and two linesmen will be nominated for FIFA matches. National Associations will be required to nominate spe-

The upper age limit for referees at the 1994 World Cup finals is to be reduced from 50 to

A survey will be conducted on goalkeepers moving during penalty shoot-outs. The board will experiment by allowing movement backwards or sideways but not forwards.

The board also agreed to try out two other ideas in an attempt to brighten up the game and encourage scoring.

No off-side between 18-metre lines at either end of the pitch. plus a ban on goalkeeper retrieving back passes by hand will feature at the world under-17 championships in Italy in August.

SPORTS NEWS IN BRIEF

Monaco wins French Cup

PARIS (R) - A last-minute goal by substitute Gerald Passi enabled Monaco to snatch the French Cup Saturday and left champions Marseille empty-handed after their second soccer final in 10 days. Passi sent Argentine striker Ramon Diaz down the left wing in the dying moments of the match and then raced into the area to drive the return pass just under the bar. It was a deserved 1-0 victory for Monaco, who created more chances in a match in which Marseille could never break down their stubborn defence. The end marked another disappointment for Marseille whose hopes of becoming France's first European champions were dashed in Bari 10 days ago when they lost the European Cup final to Red Star Belgrade after a penalty shoot-out.

Real Madrid wins over Barceiona

MADRID (R) - Real Madrid, stripped of the Spanish Soccer league title by Barcelona after an appalling season, took a measure of revenge Saturday when they beat the new champions 1-0 in their final game. Barcelona, who eased up after securing the title four weeks ago and won only one of their last five matches, let the former champions dominate the game. Barcelona's international goalkeeper Andoni Zubizarreta thwarted the home side on several occasions, saving a penalty in the 77th minute from Spain's top scorer Emilio Butragueno. But midfielder Adolfo Aldana's goal 35 seconds into the second half was enough to end Real's season on a high note in front of a capacity crowd in their Santiago Bernabeu Stadium.

Bayern closes on Kaiserslautern

BERLIN (AP) - Bayern Munich kept alive its hopes of defending its Bundeshga championship Saturday, using a 35thminute goal by Thomas Strunz to beat Nuremberg 1-0 while league leader Kaiserslautern feel 3-2 to Borussia Moenchengladbach. A draw by Kaiserslantern, leading by two points with 46, would have clinched the title for itself. The championship will be determined next week, the final week of the 34-game season, when Kaiserslautern, still only needing a draw, faces seventh-place FC Cologne away, while Bayern plays at home against next-to-last place Bayer Uerdingen. Should Bayern win and Kaiserslautern lose, Munich would win the title based on a plus-33 goal differential, 10 goals better than Kaiserslautern. At Kaiserslautern, Borussia Moenchengladbach raced to a 3-0 lead on a pair of goals by Thomas Kastenmaier in the ninth and 20th minutes and an insurance score by forward Peter Wynhoff in the 82nd.

Hansel wins Belmont and million-dollar bonus

BELMONT, New York (R) - Hansel held off hard-charging Kentuchy Derby champion Strike. The Gold in a tremendous battle to the wire to win the 123rd running of the Belmont Stakes by a head Saturday. In addition to the 417,480-dollar prize for first place, Hansel won $1 million triple crown bonus for best overall performances in America's most famous thoroughbred racing series. Mane minister finished third as he did for the two previous triple crown races.

Bird discharged

BOSTON (AP) - Boston Celtics all-star forward Larry Bird was released from a Boston hospital Saturday, just a day after undergoing surgery to repair back problems that kep him out of 22 games last season. Bird. 34, was in surgery at New England Baptist Hospital for two hours Friday morning to repair congenital and playing-aggravated problems. Celtics physician Dr. Arnold Scheller said Friday a tragment from a bulging disc which had herniated was removed from Bird's back to relieve pressure on a nerve. Work also was done in the facet joint area of Bird's back to correct a congenital condition and provide additional room for the nerve ending, Scheller said. Scheller said Bird's rehabilitation will. include wearing a brace and walking nearly 10 miles (16 kilometres) every day. Neither Scheller nor Celtics senior executive vice president Dave Gavitt would say when Bird. who has a year remaining on his contract, was expected to return to the

Walker wins Milk Race

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Belgian Jerry Cooman won for the second day in a row but British professional Chris Walker maintained his lead to win overall title in the around Britain Milk Race Saturday. Cooman, of the Banana-Falcon team, finished the final 82-mile (132-kilometre) stage from Manchester in 3 hours, 25 minutes and 8 seconds to edge out Walker, who finished with same time. The finish gave Walker a 22-second victory over countryman Simeon Hempstall in the overall standings. Walker took the overall lead in the opening road stage on May 27 and has rarely threatend throughout the 1,170 miles (1,882 kms).

within the laws in a bid to elimin- sion of the ball may dribble it but

"I'm surprised she won so easily, but I'm not surprised she won," he said. "I thought she had

Evens favourite Shadayid, attempting to complete the 1,000

Guineas-Oaks double, made her way smoothly through the field to challenge two furlongs (400

She was passed in the final fur-metres) out, but could not stay.

cialist linesmen.

wins 1,500 metres "I hope the win will bring me VANCOUVER, British Col-

rain-affected track. The 23-ye ar-old Rono was a surprise 1,500 metres winner at long by 6-1 shot Shamshir and The final result, of what was the 1,000th English classic ever run, was a triumph for the Maktoum brothers, the Dubai Sheikhs who have become the most powerful owners on the English turf. pionships in August. The winner, Jet Ski Lady, is owned by Maktoum Al Maktoum, Shamshir by brother Sheikh Mohammed, and thirdplaced Shadayid by Hamdan Al-Maktoum.

Olympic champion Rono

American Greg Whitely and Doug Consiglio of Canada on a

Rono won the 1,500 metres at victory would provide a similar. omen for the world chamcontinued her comeback from in-Angela Chalmers.

now I'm just happy to run," said Slaney, 32, who at one time held all U.S. records from 800 to 10.000 meters.

HOROSCOPE FORECAST FOR TUESDAY JUNE 10, 1991 By Thomas S. Pierson, Astrologer, Carroll Righter Foundation

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Good day to get busy and pay the obligations that are of a governmental, business or personal nature and keep yourself on a high level of expression. Take time for

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19) This is your day to the yourself definitely to a course of action that can be the conditions under which you wish to live and operate.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20) There are a considerable number of preparations to be made before you can put in effect that plan that seems so much to you so be open-minded to new ideas.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 21) You can join with friends who are very logical in their thinking and clever in their activities to gain personal desires that mean much to you. MOON CHILDREN: (June 22 to July 21) Now you find all kinds of officials to see or executives with whom to consult so you can get the answers you need regarding your own job.

LEO: (July 22 to August 21) Whatever brings to light a new course of action is just great now so seek out those persons, ideas that can bring your life more fulfillment.

VIRGO: (August 22 to Septer 22) You can see quite clearly how to get your obligations in back of you now by some new system and

way to handling them that takes zway time, energy.

LIBRA: (September 23 to Octobe 22) You now have the right answers for those companions who are interested in you and with whom you want everything to be bunky dory in the future.

SCORPIO: (October 23 to Novem ber 21) Whatever one would like to do that does require some good-enthusiastic parting out of effort is-just great now so do whatever project faces you efficiently.

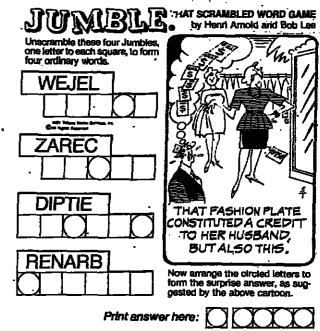

SAGITTARIUS: (November 22 to December 21) You can have many happy moments now with the choosen companions who have much the same interest as yours or whatever gives you a good langh. CAPRICORN: (December 22 to January 20) You now have it in your power to gain the goodwill of members of your own claim by showing them you have a special devotion for them. AQUARRUS: (January 21 to February 19) Your mind is working. overtime working out any prob-lems facing you of a routine mature and you can communicate your ideas to all others and make a little bit of meat look like a lot. I added a toaster."

PISCES: (February 20 to March 20) Whatever brings you the safa-factions that come from having an abundance and to spare for your needs is good now so make a point to study income.

Jumbles: FORGO APRON DEFACE SALUTE Procrastination is a bad habit that should be this-PUT OFF

GOREN BRIDGE

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1-Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠A106542 ○762 ○93 ♣Q8

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ? ? What action do you take? —You have a six-card major which you can show conveniently at the one-level. If you don't bid one spade now, you might never be able to get your suit into the auction safely later. A competitive response here doesn't promise extra values. Q.2-Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ◆A106542 7762 93 ◆Q8

The bidding has proceeded:
North West South East

1 1 2 2

3 Pass ? What action do you take? Partner's new-suit bid at the threelevel is a near force and shows extra values. (With a minimum, North would have passed.) Since partner doesn't promise support for your suit on this sequence, take a false preference to three diamonds. That's the lesser evil.

Q.3-Both vulnerable, as South you hold: $85 \ \text{$^AJ7} \ \text{$^KJ943} \ \ \ddot{$^654}

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 4 Pass 1 Pass Pass What do you bid now?

A.—It's time to tell partner that more than half your strength lies in the unbid suit. Bid one no trump. Unless partner can make another move, you won't be missing Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South finished third.

♦A1093 ♥10 ♦Q75 ♦AKQ109

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 • Pass 1 : Pass 1 NT Pass Pass

What action do you take? A .-- You have a pretty good hand. but for the moment you need do no more than complete painting a picture of your distribution. Bid two diamonds. That not only shows partner your support but also high-lights your heart shortness and, since you took a third bid, partner should get the message that you have a better-than-minimum open-

Q.5-Neither vulnerable, as South ♠KJ762 TAQJ95 Void ♠KQ6 The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West

Pass 1 Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the possible misfit, you are going to insist on game, at least. A jump shift to three hearts describes your band rather nicely

Q.6-East-West vulnerable, South you hold:

$532 \circ 85 \cdot J8 \times KJ10987

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 \times Dbi ?

What action do you take?

A.—Some sort of preempt seems in order, it's just a question of how high you should go. Since our hand lacks a singleton, we'll settle for a conservative three clubs, though we won't quibble with a full-blooded leap to four clubs.

the same luck in the world chamumbia (R) — Olympic champion Peter Rono of Kenya won the pionships it did in 1988 (at the Seoul Olympics)," Rong said. In other highlights, Jose Barbosa of Brazil recorded the fas-

1,500 metres at the Harry Jerome International Saturday in a successful warmup for the upcoming world championships in Tokyo. Rono cruised to victory in three minutes 38,28 seconds over the 1988 Olympic Games in this meeting shortly before his Olympic gold medal run. The Kenyan said he hoped his latest with a victory in the women's 1,500-metres in four minutes 6.58 seconds over Canadian dual Commonwealth games champion "I'm not at my best, but right

test outdoor 800 metres of 1991

with a time of 1:45.65. American

Ocky Clarke was second in American veteran Mary Slaney

Mutt'n'Jeff

Andy Capp

Peanuts.

THE Daily Crossword by Betty Jorgensen

9 Winged 10 Bawl 11 City on the Adnatic 12 Env. abbr. 46 Wrath 47 Like stadium seating . 13 Rug type 21 Steep ravin 22 Exhausted 51 End of quip 59 Teeming 60 Huge land 61 Unimagena 62 Candle 26 Bulg. city 27 Lams's home 28 Class 29 Spoken 31 Important 32 Get — on! 64 New Haver

DOWN Gov. safety org.

2 Smelting residue 3 Pelee pouring 4 Exaggerated 5 Encasement

(hurry) 33 Like a judge 33 Like a judge 35 Pun or fun er 36 Devotsed fan 39 Merge 40 Passages 45 Director Spielberg 47 Tribulabons

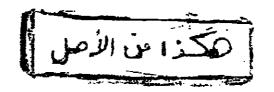

49 Not concealed 50 Wickerwork tree 51 Kismet

52 Nor. king 53 Ready to pick 54 Huck Finn's

55 in a muddie

Ċ

per ere hat nd-

nor to dan up ucks

arly out to

rew in ia, be

i there

fell in

y tem-

o aven

:0 pla-

at and ध्य हि

set jt

ed out

ophical

Where

forbid-

OWES &

aged a

he 1979

e Aden

e same

ag pro-aory is

ment s

TOTALE.

ge bare e and fear

)() stroot

has been about in

3 VICT

te House

त्रं व्याद्धाः

JUST TO COM

nce of the s defence

ade under

is, seven alleged in day that al essed under <sub>(aakhi</sub> A need to be a popular the occase of the barrier of the barrier or right of the barrier to the bar

minai 2)

Cano (Mg)

:ICES

Jordan Times in co-operation with

Cairo Amman Bank Weekly F.X. Market Summary

(June 3-June 7, 1991)
THE U.S. dollar traded within narrow margins during most of last week's trading sessions, as the market awaited the release of U.S. employment figures for May. It dropped to its lowest levels Tuesday, but then rose gradually until Friday, when it rallied sharply in New York after the release of better than expected employment data. The dollar closed marginally higher Monday, reaching its highest levels during early New York trading hours, after news that the National Association of Purchasing Management's index rose to (45.4%) in May, compared to (42.1%) in April. It received a further lift from a (0.8%) rise in April construction spending in the U.S.. But fear of central bank intervention capped the dollar's rise, giving way to profit taking, and ending The dollar fell further Tuesday as dealers continued to liquidate long dollar positions for fear of central bank intervention. A brief dollar rally took place in New York after U.S. Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady was reported as saying that he was satisfied with the dollar's current levels. The comments indicated to the market that the Bush administration may tolerate higher dollar levels. But the dollar's failure to breach resistance at (1.7550) marks later that day, caused a new wave of profit taking. The dollar thus closed at its lowest levels for the week at (1.7445/55) marks, (138.80/85) yen and at (1.6990/00 dollars to the sterling pound.

The dollar rallied again Wednesday, after comments from Federal Reserve (Fed) Board Chairman Alan Greenspan at a monetary conference in Osaka, Japan. The Fed chairman was reported to have said that "the probability of a stronger than expected (U.S. economic) recovery is rising slightly." The dollar rose strongly after these comments, but failure to breach resistance at (1.7550) marks for the second day in a row caused yet another round of profit-taking. The dollar closed slightly higher in New York, compared to its closing levels the previous

The Wednesday rally continued on Thursday, as dealers took long dollar positions in anticipation of the release of U.S. employment figures for May the next day. The market anticipated a drop of (89000) in non-farm payrolls, while observers maintained that as long as unemployment remained below (7%), the data would be interpreted as positive for the Friday witnessed a strong dollar rally, as bullish sentiment about the direction of the U.S. economy was reinforced by better than expected U.S. employment data for May. Non-farm payrolls did not decrease, but rather increased by (59000), while the unemployment rate rose to (6.9%), from (6.6%) in April. The data was seen by the market as further confirmation that the U.S. economy is on its way towards recovery, in view of the release of several positive economic indicators in the past two weeks. Accordingly, the dollar closed at its highest levels for the week at (1.7715/25) marks, (140.42/52) yen and at (1.6705/25) dollars to the sterling pound.

The dollar is expected to rise further in the week ahead. Some dealers maintained that after finally breaching resistance at (1.76) marks and (140) yen, the U.S. currency could go as high as (1.80) marks and (142) yen, if the central banks fail to intervene again next week.

New York Closing Rates for Major Currencies Against the U.S. Dollar

		,	-
Сштепсу	37/5/1991 Close	7/6/1991 Close	Percent Change
Sterling Pound	1.6975	1.6710	- 1.56%
Deutsche Mark	T.7425	1.7720	- 1.66%
Swiss Franc	1.4855	1.5182	- 2.15%
French Franc	5.9075	6-0020	- 1.57%
Japanese Yen	138.35	140.47	- 1.51%
USD Per STG

Euro-Currency Interest Rates

	31/5/	1991	7/6/19	91
Сигтепсу	I-Month(%)	l-Year (%)	J-Month (%)	1-) car (%)
U.S. Dollar	5.81	6.43	6.00	6.87
Sterling Pound	11.43	10.93	71.50	10.81
Deutsche Mark	8.75	9.00	8.87	9.00
Swiss Franc	7.87	7.68	8.12	7.81
French Franc	9.25	9.18	9.56	9.43
Japanese Yen	7.81	7.31	7.81	7.31

Interbank hid rates for amounts exceeding U.S. Hollars 1,000,000 or equivalent Bank of Jordan Exchange Rate Bulletin Date: 9/6/1991

SNAKE EATER

Show: 12:30, 3:30, 6:30, 8:30, 10:30, p.m.

Сигтелсу	Bid	Offer
U.S. Dellar	.684	.686
Sterling Pound	1.1418	1.1475
Deutsche Mark	. 3854	.3875
Swiss Franc	.4500	.4523
French Franc	.7138	.1144
Japanese Yen*	-4869	.4893
Dutch Guilder	.3423	.3440
Swedish Krona	.1076	.1081
Italian Lira*	.0520	-0523
Belgian Franc	.01874	.01883

Soviet economist predicts economic collapse without a free market system

LONDON (R) - The Soviet Union faces economic collapse unless it escapes from the grip of old ideologies and embraces a free market system, President Mikhail Gorbachev's former ecunomic adviser has said in a newspaper article.

"If we do not come to our senses, if we do not end this pagan dance, then economic collapse will be inevitable," Mr. Stanislav Shatalin wrote in Britain's Independent newspaper.

As President Mikhail Gorbachev appealed for Western aid to prop up the Soviet economy, Mr. Shatalin argued there could be no free market within a communist perspective.

He accused the Soviet government of "fiscal theft" on raising retail prices and said the country could not hope to attract foreign investment before achieving political stability.

"The economy, as a working entity, simply does not exist," wrote Mr. Shatalin, author of the so-called 500-day programme for market reform which was commissioned by President Gorbachev but dropped at the end of

He said the Soviet economy was "ideologically bankrupt."

Even by official figures, national income fell 12 per cent in the first quarter of 1991. There was no consumer market "Except the black market. Barter reigns," Mr. Shatalin wrote.

We need to construct a real infrastructure for the market. in land, housing, labour and property. Without such change - and of course without political stability
— it would be foolish to exceet Western capital to become less cautious," he noted.

Currency reform had rendered the rouble worthless and shattered confidence.

President Gorbachev is trying to forge compromises with the Soviet republics, including Russia led by radical Boris Yeltsin, on market-based economic reforms and a decentralised federation.

Mr. Shatalin said the government's anti-crisis economic rescue plan adopted earlier this year after the 500-day programme was rejected, "was clearly not up to the task."

He said President Gorbachev's to copy their systems.

approach of a new union with the republics was the best way for-

'We need not just a coalition government, but one that would have the trust of different ethnic groups," Mr. Shatalin said. President Gorbachev will attend next month's Group of Seven (G7) economic summit in London in his search for aid-But several Western leaders have called for aid to be tied to guarantees that free market reforms will be carried through, adding that they were unwilling to subsidise the current system. In a speech in Oslo Wednesday

President Gorbachev vowed to pursue democratic reforms but said the Soviet Union would not let Western nations try to force it

Greek austerity measures to cut inflation and lower deficits

ATHENS (R) - Greek inflation fell in May and the country's current account deficit narrowed sharply in April, according to figures which suggested tough government austerity measures were starting to show results.

Provisional figures published by the Bank of Greece showed the month-on-month deficit fell to $171 million in April from $728 million in March and $544.3 million a year earlier. Inflation was also lower, with the year-on-year consumer price' index at 18.4 per cent in May compared with 21.5 per cent in Greece has the European Community's highest inflation rate, but aims to get it below 17 per cent by the end of the year.

Turkey to sell Soviets

of food

cial said.

Eximbank loans.

1.7m tonnes

biggest in Turkey's crop exports," a senior agricultural offi-

The deal is backed by Turkish

Eximbank officials said the bank was about to release an

The 1,080,000 tonnes of wheat, vered in stages up to the end of

The Soviet Union has been suffering severe food shortages, caused in part by a poor distribution system — most produce is left to rot in warehouses. It is harvesting a bumber crop of grain

this year.

Turkish-Soviet trade rose to

$1.78 billion in 1990 from $1.3

billion the previous year. Turkey extended $950 million of export and investment credits to the

THE ESCAPE

(Arabic)

Show: 30:30, 6:30, 8:30 p.m.

urgent loan for $18 million.

"The drop is within government forecasts," a government

Greece is nearly half-way through an unpopular three-year austerity programme imposed by the ruling conservatives after they came to power in April 1990. Taxes and prices have risen.

Bank sources said the marked improvement in the balance of payments was due to an increase in European Community transfers and emigrant remittances. It was also helped by the first drop in the trade deficit three While year-on-year imports rose only by 2.2 per cent in April, rise in EC transfers. The improvement in balance of payments suggested that Greece's annual deficit might stay below $3 billion in 1991 against $3.59 bil-lion in 1990, bank sources said. Improving deficits and inflation

cent, including a 36.4 per cent were some of the conditions imposed by the EC before granting Greece a 2.2 billion ECU ($3 billion) balance of payments loan "The recent EC loan... averted balance of payments crisis," Bank of Greece Governor Dimitrıs Halikias said in his annual report in April. He urged the government to sustain its policies and create a exports were up by 23.1 per cent. climate favourable to investment Invisible receipts rose by 38.8 per

U.S., World Bank call truce in battle over private sector

ISTANBUL (R) — Turkey has signed a $216 million agreement ited States and the World Bank have called a truce in their bitter with the Soviet Union to export battle over promoting private 1.75 million tonnes of grain, flour enterprise in the developing world, officials have said. and macroni, officials have said. "The amount is one of the

The truce, in which both sides gave ground, should pave the way for a capital increase of about $1 billion for the International Finance Corp (IFC), a World Bank

"There's been some give and take," said one U.S. official, who asked not to be identified.

Terms for the remaining $200 U.S. officials said the bank million were still being negotiagreed to a set of measures designed to ensure that private sector development plays a key role 300,000 tonnes of barley, 352,500 tonnes of wheat flour and 20,000 tonnes of macroni, will be deliin aid programmes. Washington had accused the bank of focusing too much on helping Third World governments and state-owned companies and not enough on helping

The measures agreed on include studies of the role of private sectors in developing countries and the adoption of a strategy by the World Bank and the IFC to enhance that role, U.S. officials

The bank also agreed to organisational changes to spur private enterprise in the Third World.

WASHINGTON (R) - The Un- such as hiring people from the private sector to promote private business, the officials said.

But U.S. officials conceded that Washington did not get all that it sought. The United States had wanted a promise from the World Bank to devote at least half its lending to promoting the private sector in the developing world. However, the two sides did agree on a way to measure whether a loan promotes private sector development, effectively establishing a criteria to determine if the credit should proceed. The agreement means that the IFC should be able to win a capital increase next month, although it is likely to be slightly smaller than the $1.3 billion it was originally seeking. The United States had held up approval of the capital increase in order to prod the World Bank to agree to its private sector propos-

"We're willing to go forward," said a U.S. official, indicating that the United States was now ready to join other industrial nations in contributing to the capital increase.

tions of Dar Al-Orouba"

Saudi wheat exports may rise because of Gulf crisis

the Gulf crisis may help Saudi Arabia boost its wheat exports this year to well over two million tonnes, economists said.

Saudi Arabia, already the world's suxth biggest wheat exporter due to the government's 10-year drive for food selfsufficiency, has been selling around 1.9 million tonnes of its 1990 harvest of 3.6 million tonnes, they said.

However, the government is still locked into supporting its wheat farmers with huge subsidies that makes Saudi grain absurdly uncompetitive at world

Faced with large Gulf war costs but unable to cut its subsidies to farmers much further without risking discontent in the provinces, the kingdom seems set to sustain its current output and export levels, the economists

The extra few hundred thousand tonnes of surplus wheat this year could come from a drop in domestic consumption, and port disruption during the crisis, they said.

After Iraq invaded Kuwait last August, an estimated 300,000 Kuwaitis fled to Saudi Arabia. In the ensuing months more than 500,000 foreign troops arrived to fight in the alliance that drove Iraq from the emirate in Febru-

But 750,000 Yemenis left the kingdom after its political ties with Sanaa soured due to Yemen's public sympathy for Iraq. The Yemeni migrant workers capita consumers of bread in their staple diet.

Delays and disruptions at Saudi ports as the multinational forces arrived has also held up an unknown amount of Saudi grain which remains for export from last year, they added.

The crisis did not affect domestic farmers' planting plans, and may even have encouraged them to plant more, agricultural experts in the kingdom said. Because of Iraq's attack on

Kuwait and the uncertain political situation, the government paid the subsidy to farmers early last year, they said. As it became apparent Iraq was not going to attack Saudi Arabia the farmers, who farm areas well away from the borders, bought more seed with the subsidy money.

No official estimates were available on the 1991 harvest. The cost of Saudi wheat production has dropped dramatically since the early days of the selfsufficiency drive when it was about $1,100 per tonne. It now costs $400 to $500 a tonne under a two-tier system favouring smaller producers.

This is still about three times the price of world market wheat of around $125 to $135 per tonne. The government therefore loses twice, once in the subsidy, and once for the opportunity lost by not importing wheat at prevailing world prices. However, the subsidy cost is offset by the political benefits of sustaining large number of nationals in gainful employment agricultural sector, the econom ists said

"It's just like farm subsidies anywhere, once you start, it's very hard to stop," said one agricultural expert. But opinion is split over the future of sustaining this large wheat acreage in a country which is mainly desert. Water resources, and the problems of increasing salinity by irrigating the sandy soils, cast a large shadow over the Saudi farm sector. "From all I see, I'd say there is going to be a major water shortage in the next five to six years," said a diplomatic economist in the kingdom.

Others believe there is plenty of water but that, like oil, it becomes less economic to extract the deeper it lies.

In watershed areas in the mountains of central and western Saudi Arabia, water still flows from depths of under 20 metres. But near Riyadh farmers have to go down 1,500 metres for water.

The self-sufficiency policy, however, continues and is in its second stage. The kingdom still requires barley imports to feed livestock, which have outgrown domestic barley output of around 350,000 tonnes a year. But it is self-sufficient in eggs, and nearly so in poultry, the economists

This is not good news for foreign food exporters. "As they become self-sufficient...trade curtains come down as domestic farmers are protected," said a visiting Australian businessman.

Nearly 500,000 jobs in eastern Germany to go later this month

BERLIN (R) - East Germany's east's labour market was pre-Treuhand privatisation agency vented by unions and employers in the former communist state's overmanned industry will become unemployed this month when a job protection agreement ex-

Treuhand board member Mr. Alexander Koch told the Handelsblatt business daily that 450,000 would lose their jobs on June 30, with another 600,000 becoming unemployed by 1992. Mr. Koch said half of the 2.8

million workers in Treuhand industries will have lost their jobs by 1992. The agency dismissed 360,000 in the first three months of this year.

East German industry, once a showpiece of the former communist bloc, has crumbled since the overnight introduction in July 1990 of West Germany's market

An immediate collapse in the said nearly half a million workers agreeing to a one year job protection deal and by the introduction of state short time schemes, which pay workers to do virtually Mr. Koch said the gradual expiry of short time scheme was staggering the surge in unemployment in eastern Germany, where one in three is already on jobless benefit or short time. Economists forecast 50 per cent joblessness

New service industries, neglected under communism, have created around one million jobs. But Mr. Koch said unemployment was also kept down by up to 500,000 east Germans working in the more affluent west. A poll published by the DGB union federation said 52 per cent of east Germans feared becoming unemployed.

Polish government wants speedy reforms

WARSAW, Poland (AP) tious economic reform plan, Poland has unveiled a mid-course correction designed to put half of the economy in private hands within a year.

The plan to sell off hundreds of state-owned industries and businesses is outlined in a report that calls for accelerating the transformation to a free market

It calls for the exercise of government Fiat to implement the The government of Prime Minister Jan Krzysztof Bielecki

has said that in addition to de-Nineteen months into an ambi- liberate, step-by-step public offerings of some state companies conducted so far, a radical acceleration is needed.

The government is launching an economic offensive... a 'jump into capitalism," wrote the Polish daily Gazeta Wyborcza. "The most important goal — it seems to be the government's creed — is to make various forms of private ownership outweigh state property as soon as possible," the commentary said.

In a radical programme promoted by Finance Minister Leszek Baicerowicz, Poland on Jan. 1, 1990, freed prices, arrested wages, cut back subsidies, made the currency convertible and exposed domestic producers to foreign competition.

IEA sees world oil demand up 1.7% yearly to 2005

PARIS (AP) - Global demand for crude oil is expected to rise an average 1.7 per cent annually through the year 2005, while demand among the members of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) alone is seen advancing only 0.6 per cent a year, according to the International Energy Agency (IEA).

The figures were included in a combined review of IEA members' energy policies and longterm outlook on market condi

The outlook, covering the period 1989-2005, assumes the price of oil will average about $21 a barrel through 1992, then rise gradually to $35 a barrel 2005. The agency downplayed the Gulf war as a factor, noting that "most indications are that, as far as oil prices are concerned, the impact of recent events is likely to prove short-lived."

Rising oil demand will focus on the transport and petrochemical sectors, the agency report said. Transport demand will grow an estimated two per cent a year on average until 1995, then about 1.1 per cent for the following decade, it said. Petrochemical oil demand is seen rising an average 0.9 per cent a year to 2005.

On the production side, OECD oil output is seen falling about 3.5 million barrels a day between 1990-2005 to 12.2 million barrels a day, while Middle East production is expected to nearly double to 32.3 million barrels a day. Production of non-Middle East developing countries is seen rising about 7.0 million barrels a day to 27.4 million barrels a day. OECD imports are expected to be 7.6 million tons higher in 2005 than they were in 1989. On a percentage basis, OECD dependence on imports is projected to rise to 59 to 70 per cent by 2005.

FURNISHED APARTMENT FOR RENT

Deluxe 3-bedroom apartment in Dahiet Al Rasheed. Street level, independent entrance, separate central heating and telephone. Owner's personal modern furniture in excellent conditions. Available August.

Please call Dr. Owels 603128

DELUXE FURNISHED APARTMENT FOR RENT

Consisting of three bedrooms, spacious salons, three bathrooms, two glassed-in verandas. Location: Shmeisani, Tyche Hotel street.

Annual rent: JD 8,000 Please call tel. 668080

-DELUXE FURN!SHED APARTMENT FOR RENT-Ground floor, garden, separate entrance and terrace. Consisting of two master bedrooms, an additional bedroom, salon, parlour, deluxe furniture, with all electric appliances. Location: Southern Um Uthaina, Samirra'a Street, beside the Arab Bureau for Narcotic Control.

> Annual rent. Tel. 812440, 814462

Soviet Union last year. * Per 100 Tel: 634144 Cinema Tel: 677420 PHILADELPHIA CONCORD PRETTY WOMAN SENIOR WEEK Show: 3:30, 6:15, 8:30, 10:30 p.m. 10:30 Show: 12:30, 3:30, 6:15, 8:30, 10:30. Tel: 675571 Tel: 625155 Cinema RAINBOW MUOUM Ahmad Zaki & Hala Sudki LORENZO LAMAS in

(00

INTENSIVE COURSE IN MODERN STANDARD ARABIC

The Language Centre at the University of Jordan announces that the intensive course in Modern Standard Arabic for speakers of other languages will commence on June 29, and will last for 8 weeks.

To all diplomatic missions and international organisations

An accurate translation of the National Charter with portfolio information on the National Charter committee members is available at "Publica-

For further details, please contact telephone 692784

The programme is intensive and classes meet in the morning for 20 hours per week, Saturday-

Those interested please call at the Language Centre for registration.

Hurd says no help for Moscow at G7 summit

Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd, dampening German hopes, said Sunday the Soviet Union would not receive any pledge of aid from next month's London Group of Seven (G?) economic Summit.

After talks with Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher in his East German hometown, Hurd told a joint news conference the leaders of the United States, Japan, Germany, France, Britain, Italy and Canada would probably meet Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev alongside their July 15-17 summit.

'No one is expecting that from that meeting will come a promise of help," he said, adding that the seven would discuss Soviet plans and needs sympathetically with the Kremlin leader.

Genscher, sitting beside Hurd,

LONDON (R) — British Prime Minister John Major, in deep

political trouble at home, met

Germany's Chancellor Helmut

concerns were progress toward union among the 12 EC members and how to handle the presence of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev during next month's G7 summit of leading industrial pow-

seen by government officials as an important element in the government's campaign, partly for domestic political reasons, to halt

the movement within the EC for a timetable for political and

One senior official, asked whether Britain was heading for further isolation from its partners, said last week in a reference to Kohl: "We have some big ease its diplomatic offensive against Taiwan if the island

agrees to discuss reunification

with the mainland, and influential

Nationalist Party said Sunday.

Lin Yu-Siang, who returned from a private visit to Beijing last week, told reporters that Chinese officials had indicated they might stop blocking Taiwan's efforts to join international bodies such as the General Agreement on "The issue of Taiwan's international status can be resolved through talks," Lin quoted Sun

Xiaoyu, deputy director of the Taiwan Affairs Office of China's merely continue to shout prop-

Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The Major-Kohl alliance is ers in London.

monetary union.

friends in Europe."

But German government sources said Friday Bonn would continue lobbying its partners to discuss coordinated financial aid for Moscow at the G7 summit.

Commenting on reports that aid would not be on the agenda of the proposed meeting with Gorbachev, a German official said: "If we don't even want to talk about it, then there is no point in Gorbachev coming."

Hurd said what the London meeting could achieve was "procedure, processes and examination on a new basis of the plans and need for help of the Soviet Un-

Senior Kremlin aide Yevgeny Primakov said in an interview published Thursday that Gorbachev would be seeking financial support for specific moves to a market economy but not gener-

Major seeks German help

toward EC compromise

The Soviet leader appealed to the West in his Nobel Peace Prize address last week to support his policy of "perestroika" (restructuring), warning that peace could otherwise be endangered.

Genscher referred to a letter from Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh calling for a political reshaping of united Europe to be considered at this month's Berlin foreign ministers' session of the 34-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (ĆSCE). He said he and Hurd found in the aims" between the West and the Soviet Union. The Berlin meeting should adopt a crisis-resolution mechanism that would strengthen the conflict-prevention centre created by a CSCE summit in Paris

many points of agreement, also

Douglas Hurd last November.

Britain has proposed the creation of a team of mediators who could be called in by both sides to an inter-state dispute or by a member-state to help resolve internal conflicts.

Hurd and Genscher said they also agreed on the need to appoint a special U.N. official to coordinate relief operations and deal more quickly and effectively

Sabotage suspected in Pakistan train crash

GHOTKI, Pakistan (R) -Sabotage may have caused a train crash in the troubled southern Pakistani province of Sind that killed at least 55 people and injured more than 180, officials

Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif suspended a top railway official and ordered a speedy inquiry after visiting the crash site at Ghotki, 320 kilometres north of Karachi where an express ploughed into the back of a parked freight train Saturday.

Jam Sadiq Ali, chief minister of Sind province, told him the crash was caused by "some subversive activity." Several other officials at the crash site said openly that sabotage was the cause.

Railways Minister Mir Hazar Khan Bijrani said sabotage∞uld not be ruled out, a statement repeated in parliament in Islamabad by the minister of state for law. Amir Hussain.

Sind has been plagued for years by ethnic and political violence and banditry for kidnappings for

Bijrani said in a statement that electric points and signalling systems at Ghotki were highly advanced and it was "impossible" to direct a train onto an occupied

The official APP news agency noted Ali as saving the freight train occupied the main Ghotki track for 40 minutes although it should have left 30 minutes before the crash.

Sharif ordered a high-level inquiry committee to report on the crash within three days. It was Pakistan's worst train accident since January last year when 307 people were killed and 430 iniured in a similar collision in the same area.

The Ghotki crash occurred eight days after an unexplained explosion in an army arsenal in north west frontier province which killed at least 18 people and wounded more than 60.

Relief workers at Ghotki said they had counted 55 bodies. Doctors said the toll could rise as the condition of about 20 of the injured was critical.

A witness of the crash said: Detached limbs of the dead and injured passengers were scattered at the site. Several of the destroyed coaches were red with passengers' blood. It was a horrible ## threatens U.S. air base kilometres northwest of Manila, exploded Sunday afternoon send-

BOTOLAN, Philippines (R) -A Philippine volcano exploded Sunday threatening one of the largest U.S. military bases in Asia, but a U.S. spokesman said there was no danger a hail of ash and lava could damage weapons

A U.S. embassy spokesman in Manila declined to say whether nuclear weapons were stationed at Clark Air Base, close to the long-dormant Mount Pinatubo. But he said "no weapons systems are threatened at Clark." All military personnel were recalled to the base north of Man-ila. U.S. officials ordered dependants to rehearse evacuation ready for a possible transfer to the Subic Bay naval dockyard 50 kilometres to the southwest.

"We're going to continue watching it through the night ... we want everyone to be ready in case we have to (evacuate), U.S. Air Base Lieutenant-Colonel Ron Rand said in a broadcast over local American Forces Television.

More than 40,000 American servicemen and their dependants live at Clark and at Subic Bay, the largest U.S. bases in Asia. "Unfortunately, this is just the beginning ... stronger and bigger eruptions are still possible, " Philippine volcanology chief Raymundo Punongbayan said in a radio interview.

U.S. and Philippine officials say the eruption of Pinatubo took place on the northwest flank of the mountain away from the air base. But they are concerned a bigger blast may send lava and mud speeding its way.

Mount Pinatubo, in the mountainous Zambales region some 90

BELGRADE (R) — Yugoslavia's central republic of Bosnia-

Herzegovina convened an emergency defence meeting after

Serbian militia crossed into its territory from neighbouring

Croatia, Tanjug news agency said

It said Bosnian President Alija

Izetbegovic called a session of the republic's defence council Saturday after special forces of the self-proclaimed Serbian autonomous region of Krajina in the republic of Croatia entered the Bosnia, which has a mixed population of Muslims, Serbs and Croats, is caught between the main rivals in the Yugoslav crisis,

Tanjug said a battalion of the day exercise in Titov Drvar to Milan Martic as saying other ex-

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) -

creating severe unemployment and environmental problems,

official reports seen Sunday said.

Describing Vietnam as "a hotbed of the population explosion," the Vietnam News Agency said the current population of 67.5 million is expanding at a rate of 1.2 million people each year and is expected to reach 80 mil-

Citing rapid increases in the lion by the year 2000.

the border between Krajina and republic.

Serbia and Croatia.

"test combat-readiness."

Bosnian town of Titov Drvar.

Bosnia holds emergency meeting after Serb incursion

ing plumes of ash and smoke into the sky and rivers of red-hot lava and mud cascading down its Pinatubo, dormant for 600 years, was the second volcano along the Pacific "rim of fire" to explode in the past week.

In Japan, Mount Unzen

erupted last Monday, killing 38 people on Kyushu Island around 1.000 kilometres southwest of Tokyo.

Pressure was reported building

inside the volcano again Sunday after it vented a torrent of lava, gas and debris overnight which engulfed the outskirts of a resort At Pinatubo, the volcano ejected a towering ash cloud eight kilometres high, with winds spreading it over a 100 kilometres area and carrying it as far as the South China Sea. There were no immediate reports of casualties as almost 15,000 people, mostly from the Aeta tribe, have fied 20 villages within a 20-kilometre radius of the volcano. Civil defence officials said most of the tribe had been evacuated.

Because of heavy ash in the sky, flights out of the U.S. air base may have to be rescheduled. spokesman at Clark said.
Clark is headquarters of the 13th air force. Two squadrons of F-4 fighters have been withdrawn as part of defence cuts. But the base, used to resupply forces during the Gulf war, remains a key U.S. logistics centre

Kaifu in volcano town in the Western Pacific.

Japanese Prime Minister

Izetbegovic was trying to con-

Krajina, a predominantly-

Serbian populated enclave in southern Croatia, has declared independence and unification

with the largest republic Serbia in a revolt against Croatia's moves towards independence from

The incursion into Bosnia was likely to damage an agreement reached by the country's six republics last week to solve their inter-ethnic conflicts peacefully.

nian police had detained three men, including two Croatian policemen, after finding supplies

In recent weeks several ship-

Serbs and others for Croats, have

"permanent redundant work

ple. In rural areas, the number of unemployed makes up one-third of the total work force, the Satur-

Another agency dispatch, issued Sunday, described mounting environmental problems in Hanoi, the national capital,

where the inner city has swollen to 940,000 people compared to 150,000 in 1954.

Lack of sanitation, drainage day report said.

automatic wea

ammunition in their car.

It quoted Krajina militia chief ments of arms, some destined for ercises would follow. It said he been intercepted by the Bosnian claimed the incursion had erased police, increasing tensions in the Population, environmental problems plague Vietnam

Vietnam's soaring population is force" of 600,000 to 700,000 peo-

Belgrade Radio reported Bos-tact the federal army to report the incident, Tanjug said.

ugoslavia_

Toshiki Kaifu Sunday visited a hot springs resort threatened by Unzen volcano as scientists warned of another possible catastrophic explosion. The volcano exploded again Saturday night, spewing a scald-ing stream of lava, gases and debris which engulfed the outskirts of the resort town of Shimabara in southern Japan. No one was reported killed or missing after Saturday night's eruption, the biggest this century, at Mount Unzen, about 1,000 kilometres southwest of Tokyo on the island of Kyushu.

Kaifu told evacuees: "The government will help you out. So please keep up your spirits and hang in there.

Kaifu said he would take measures to secure housing for residents affected by the volcano.

About 10,000 people have already been evacuated and this number could increase, officials

Volcanic hail -- small pieces of debris - rained down on Shimabara and its 44,000 residents.

Shimabara, areas of which are just eight kilometres from Mount Unzen, narrowly escaped disaster Saturday night. The wave of lava and gas engulfed and burned more than 70 of the 230 homes evacuated just the day before as it rolled to within two kilometres of the populated coastal strip.

The torrent almost cut off the smaller town of Fukae, with a population of 8,500, to the south Shimabara. Two navy warships stood by to help with evacuation. "There seems to be no danger at this moment. But our biggest worry now is a tidal wave," a ## town official said. Pope meets

Jaruzelski

WARSAW, Poland (AP) Pope John Paul II received a he ended a nine-day trip to his native land: Former cummunist

15-minute meeting took place at 8 a.m. at the Papal Nuncio's resi-

nally were interested in holding such a meeting. The rest was arranged by the Holy Spirit," the 67-year-old Jaruzelski said with a chuckle as he emerged and got into his private Peugeot, accompanied by a bodyguard.

A Vatican spokesman said the meeting was allowed because Jaruzelski, head of state until December, was the one who had extended the formal invitation for

Jaruzelski said he and the Pope talked about "Polish affairs ... world affairs, about hopes and

From an aristocratic family,

The last meeting between John Paul and Jaruzelski was an icy airport confrontation at the end of the pontiff's last pilgrimage in 1987. Communist authorities were furious at what they saw as political interference by John Paul, who during the visit had urged the faithful not to lose 'solidarity."

Jaruzelski, who imposed martial law to crush Solidarity in 1981 and then yielded to its rebirth and assumption of power in 1989, said his meeting with the Pope have always been good.

familiar figure in dark suit and dark glasses Sunday morning as leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski. The previously unannounced

"The church side and I persothe pontiff to come to Poland.

womies.

Jaruzelski was baptized a Roman Catholic and educated in a Jesuit seminary before his family was deported to the Soviet Union during World War II. He emerged from the war a young communist officer in a Sovietsponsored Polish army.

Albanian communists meet to plan for future

working-age population, the and garbage collection in the city agency said Vietnam had a were cited.

By Jan Kremar Reuter

TIRANA — Albania's Communist Party of Labour (PLA), still in power but reeling from internal conflict and waning support, its history Monday to plan for an harmony.

cise in damage limitation.

has watched a population fleeing in thousands from the "workers" paradise" it had so proudly proclanguage had been used there laimed and seen monuments of its since 1967.

After the service, De Klerk commented: "It made a great impression on me that people still speak Afrikaans this far north in Africa." last week brought down its gov-

Earlier this week it relinquished absolute power to a national unity government that will lead the country to early elections next May or June under an all-party agreement. The events of the past months have led to a split inside the party with reformists calling for changes opposed by hardliners who blame too-fast reforms for the loss of power.

opportunity to break with the old party which led the country into the drastic state it is in," said Leontiev Cuci, 39, economics minister in the outgoing government and a delegate to the connew party with a new name that will be able to meet the demands of our current democratic development," he added.

service to the need for party reform, appear to be backing a

the past on bureaucratic mistakes rather than the bankruptcy of

"One cannot judge the events of the past from a present point of Abdyl Backa, a secretary of the PLA central committee, said. "We shall have to judge our past with a view towards the who ruled the country for 41 years and led it into almost total isolation, looms over this debate on the PLA's past.

ecuted, including many associates, and thousands sentenced to long prison terms. Forced collectivisation of farmland, economic self-reliance and a ban on private enterprise almost ruined nal and external enemies can be seen in the thousands of concrete pillboxes jutting from fields and orchards throughout the country.

"If all that material and the of Albania's independent Federation of Trade Unions. The fate of Hoxha's successor opened Albania to the world and overcame resistance within the party leadership to allow opposi-tion parties and call free elections earlier this year.

Ramiz Alia, who became president after Hoxha died in 1985, also hangs in the balance.

But his refusal openly to condemn Hoxha and his recent alignment with party conservatives has

Alia gave up the party lead-ership after the elections two months ago and was elected president by the 250-seat parliament to which the PLA won a two-

But diplomats in Tirana said

Philippine volcano explodes,

Police chief suspends himself

PINELLAS PARK, Florida (R) A chagrined police chief said Friday he ordered himself on suspension after accidentally opening fire inside the police station and shooting holes in his office walls. David Milchan, who is in charge of this Central Florida city's police department, said he had recently switched from carrying a revolver to an automatic pistol and was unfamiliar with the new weapon. He loaded the pistol and forgot to engage the safety latch. "I just forgot to use it. The gun went off, it worked just line," Milchan said. The slag ricocheted through three walls at an upward angle, and did not injure anyone. "You wouldn't want to know what I said first," Milchan said. "The second thing I did was to call in my internal affairs officer, and my boss, the city manager." Milchan decided to order himself on two days of unpaid suspension after he remembered that was the same punishment he gave one of his officers for a samilar offence. Milchan said he also ordered himself to complete a firearms training course during the next

Shanghai to crack down on dance halls, karaoke

BEUING (R) — Shanghai is to crack down on hostesses working in dance halls, beer halls and karaoke bars, an official newspaper in China's largest city said. "Attracting business by having hostesses sitting with customers, drinking with clients, massaging clients of the opposite sex or being professional dancing girls is strictly prohibited," the Wen Hui Bao quoted police and licensing authorities as saying. Authorities will also try to stamp out gambling and the drug trade, said the newspaper, received here Sun-

Couple sues magazine for misusing their wedding photo MORRISTOWN (R) - An American couple are suing a magazine they said ran their wedding picture to illustrate a feature on a man leaving his wife for another man. Michael and Agnes Grieco of Passaic township, New Jersey, said they were stunned when Woman's World ran a boto from their 1957 weddin for the story. They said the headline in the December 4, 1990 issue said: "Emily and Luke were happily married for almost 30 years — then he fell in love with a man." A photo caption said: Photo dramatisation with models," and the feature said no real names were used in the article. The Grieco family lawyer said the story had nothing to do with the couple, who are happily married and never authorised the use of the picture. He is suing for libel and invasion of privacy. Damages being sought were not specified. Woman's World magazine had no immediate comment. It is owned by Heinrich Bauer North America Inc, a part of German-based GLP International.

Cancer drug may help keep memory

LONDON (R) — A medicine

used to relieve nausea in cancer patients may also prove a wonder drug for older people losing their memories, British drugs giant Glaxo said Sunday. The firm said Ondansetron, now used in cancer therapy, had given patients in clinical trials memory abilities equivalent to when they were from six to eight years younger. There have been a number of studies ... memory decline is just one of several possible areas where Ondansetron might be used," said Glaxo spokesman Miles Wilson. Age-associated memory loss affects between 25 and 50 per cent of people aged over 65. Wilson said there had also been studies on the drug's capability to relieve anxiety and help certain addictions. The findings were reported at a Giaxosponsored seminar in Florence. Glaxo said some 600 patients took part in two clinical trials in the United States Tests on around 400 patients in Britain also indicated that the drug relieves stress without the signs of dependency that may occur in some tranquilisers. The clinical trials are still at an early stage. But independent experts said Ondansetron should also have "considerable therapeutic potential" in treating alcohol, tobacco, cocaine and opiate addiction as well as psychiatric disorders.

Kohl Sunday hoping to ease concern that Britain could be pushed further than it wants toward European economic union. Major, who met Kohl at his official country Home of Chequers outside London for informal talks and lunch, was hoping to build on the good relationship he has already created with the European Community's (EC) most powerful leader. British officials said their main

John Major bourg at the end of this month.

talks progress Although Major has improved his predecessor Margaret Thatcher, his key problem remains. His Conservative Party is split, with Thatcher and grassroots activists portraying each move toward closer integration as a betrayal of sovereignty. But many business executives see the Britain wants that summit just to take stock of progress in intergovernmental talks on monetary and political union. Others want to set clear guidelines to help the

Britain's position in the EC by adopting a conciliatory tone in contrast to the aggressiveness of Germany, once clearly aligned with France in seeking early European union, has drifted toward the more cautious camp, saving the 1994 deadline for starting the move toward a common currency might be too early. On Tuesday Germany presented a draft treaty on a single currency which both France and European Commission President Jacques Delors criticised as departing from an agreed plan to achieve monetary union in three

Both Germany and Britain agree there should be closer convergence of economic performance of all members before full monetary union, including a single EC currency, is contemplated.

Major and Kohl were due to explore possible compromises, including a plan by Delors for Britain to be allowed to accept treaty changes that would allow a single currency. Britain would be allowed to sign up for the change later. Sir Geoffrey Howe, the pro-European former chancellor and foreign secretary, suggested last week Germany could opt for currency union with the economies of northern Europe instead of full EMU, "leaving out southern European countries (for economic reasons) as well as the U.K. (for political reasons)."

China willing to ease diplomatic offensive against Taiwan from power on the mainland in legislator of Taipei's ruling 1949. China regularly protests to countries that expand links with

> Beijing's official press kept up a stream of criticism of Taiwan last week, accusing the Nationalists of stalling on unification and providing opportunities for prop-

TAIPEI (R) - China is willing to quoted as saying. that there would be no hope of Beijing's communist rulers progress in bilateral relations unhave sought to isolate Taipei since they drove the nationalists > ary force, saying the unification of the island with China was an the island. Twenty-eight states now recognise Taipei.

> People's Daily quoted a leading official of the Taiwan Affairs onents of Taiwan independence. Office in Beijing as saying. On Friday, China offered to send a delegation to Taiwan for unification talks between the Nationalist and Communist par-State Council, as saying.

Taiwan reacted cautiously to the proposal. Government spokesman Shaw Yu-Ming said it til Beijing halted its diplomatic On Saturday, Beijing renewed its threat to take Taiwan by milit-> important goal of this decade. We stress the use of peaceful methods to reunify the country. However, we will not promise to abandon the military option," the

Last month, Taiwan took what it described as a major step towards reconciliation with Beijing by repealing a 1948 emergency decree that symbolised the Nationalists' determination to crush Communist rule on the

De Klerk says winds of change again blowing across Africa

aganda at each other," Sun was contained nothing new, adding

NAIROBI (R) — South African President F.W. De Klerk ended an historic two-day visit to Kenya Sunday — the first by a South African government leader and spoke of a new wind of change blowing across Africa.

In this critical time in Africa, only countries like Kenya and South Africa had the power, energy and initiative to rescue the continent, be said at a state banquet given Saturday night by Kenyan President Daniel Arap Moi. On Sunday, De Klerk travelled 300 kilometres northwest to

Eldoret to attend morning service at a church built in the 1950s by Afrikaner farmers then living in the area. He met the handful of Afrikaners who still live and farm He also flew to Nanyuki, on the Equator, for lunch at the luxurious Mount Kenya Safari Club, which faces the 5,199-

Mount Kenya. "The Equator is no longer the dividing line of Africa for us," he commented, in what was inter-metre snow-capped peak of preted as a forecast of more trips said, were islands capable of ressoon to other black African coun-

Back in Nairobi, De Klerk had a final meeting with Moi over tea at Nairobi airport before his plane left for Johannesburg — a flight extended by the need to fly east over the Indian Ocean to avoid Tanzanian airspace. Tanzania refuses to allow South African aircraft to fly over its territory.

Speaking at the state banquet,

De Klerk told Moi and other guests that South Africa had embarked on a process which

Kenya had accomplished many years ago — the reconciliation of all its races. But, he said, the winds of change were blowing across Afri-ca and soon there would be total democracy in South Africa, with fairness and justice for all. He assured Moi that all his country's diverse communities would be accommodated, and their energies channelled to the development of the new South

Kenya and South Africa, he

cuing the continent.
The Kenya News Agency quoted Moi as commending De Klerk's "bold decision of initiating a process of dismantling apartheid in South Africa." This, he said, had given hope to all those who cherished racial

On Sunday morning the Immanuel Church in Eldoret, centre of a big farming area, was crowded with worshippers, with hundreds standing outside as De Klerk, his foreign minister Pik Botha, and other members of his party arrived. Pieter De Wet, a Dutch reformed church missionary, who had travelled from South Africa with De Klerk, said a prayer in Afrikaans - which local worshippers said was the first time the uncertain future. Reformers see it as chance to break with the old party while conservatives regard it as an exer-

holds the most crucial congress in

The PLA reluctantly loosened its Stalinist grip last year, agreed to allow opposition parties to emerge and embarked on a cautious path towards urgentlyneeded economic and social re-Instead of reaping gratitude it once-revered leader Enver Hoxha toppled by protesters.

It stood by helplessly last month as 70 per cent of the small Balkan country's workforce went on a crippling general strike that ernment.

"The congress will be a unique

"By this I mean creation of a

Conservatives, while paying lip policy of damage control and blaming most of the failures of totalitarian communism.

The shadow of the late Hoxha.

Hundreds of people were ex-

Europe's poorest state. Hoxha's paranoia about inter-effort to build them were used for housing then we would not have to live in such appalling conditions," said Gezim Shima, head

It was Alia who gradually lost him support.

thirds majority.

many party members were looking over their shoulders at developments in Bulgaria where the renamed communists, despite also winning the elections last year, have slowly seen their power eroding.

